September 24, 1839.*

THE recent disasters which have occurred to the Shipping on the Coasts of this Colony being attributable, in a great measure, to the dangerous practice of anchoring and discharging Vessels in Gage's Roads during the winter months, and especially at the period of the equinoctial gales, notwithstanding the caution of the late Governor, Sir James Stirling, to the contrary, which has been posted up at Lloyds, and is annexed to a Chart of the Anchorage published by Arrowsmith in the year 1833,—His Excellency the Governor has been pleased to direct the Harbour Master and Pilots of the port of Fremantle to refuse to bring Vessels to anchor in Gage's Roads from the 1st of May to the 1st October, and to require them always to proceed either to Owen's Anchorage, or over to Garden Island, both of which positions have been proved to be perfectly secure at all times of the year.

*By His Excellency's command,
PETER BROWN, Colonial Secretary.*
