SIR,

I enclose a correspondence with Mr. McIntosh, Chief Surveyor of Lambeth Parish, respecting the use of Western Australian timber for London wood paving.

I would suggest the publication of the correspondence.

Yours, &c.,
F. NAPIER BROOME.

The Vestry of the Parish of Lambeth,

Vestry Hall, Kennington Green, S.E.,

DEAR SIR,

27th March, 1890.

In reply to your inquiry, I beg to say I am favorably impressed with Jarrah wood, on account of its hardness and uniform quality. I have laid 1,960 yds. in Westminster Bridge, in June last year, and nearly 5,000 yards, supl., in Lambeth Walk, in November last, and expect that the durability of the wood will, in comparison with deal, be more than equivalent to the difference of cost, and that the wear will be more uniform, free from the depression caused by soft blocks and sap. The works have not been done long enough to afford any practical experience or result, but, so far, I have not seen any reason to alter my opinion of the suitability of Jarrah wood for paving blocks. I have seen but small samples of Karri wood, and consider it is not equal to Jarrah. This I give for your own information, and shall at any time be pleased to do so, but not for publication or other use.

I am, &c.,
HUGH McINTOSH.

Sir Fredk. N. Broome,

DEAR SIR,

I have no objection to your sending the information as to Jarrah wood to the Colony for publication in any way you please, either from me or otherwise. I am only careful to prevent a use I might not like.

Yours truly,
HUGH McINTOSH.

HIS Excellency the Administrator directs the publication of the following correspondence, for general information.

By Command,
OCT. BURT,
Acting Colonial Secretary.

17, Elm Park Gardens, London, S.W.,
31st March, 1890.

SIR,

I beg to enclose Reports by Mr. Richard Smith, one of the leading Coal Analysts in London, on a sample of Bunbury Coal which I brought from Western Australia.

I shall be obliged if you will cause the Reports to be communicated to those concerned, and published.

Yours, &c.,
F. NAPIER BROOME.

H.E. Sir Malcolm Fraser,
K.C.M.G.,
&c., &c., &c.

London, March 22nd, 1890.

SIR,

The sample of Coal from Bunbury, West Australia, has been submitted to examination, according to instructions; and with the following results:—

PHYSICAL PROPERTIES.—Black, bright, hard, compact, firm; showing lines of bedding structure; fracture somewhat uneven or hackly, across the lines of bedding; and somewhat conchoidal, along the lines of bedding. On one surface of the coal there are impressions of fossil plants, formed of a yellowish grey clayey substance. A very few small particles of iron pyrites, and small portions of clayey matter, occur in the coal.

ANALYSIS.—A fair average sample of the coal was submitted to complete analysis.

Composition.	Per cent.
Carbon	62.83
Hydrogen	5.77
Oxygen	13.94
Nitrogen	1.20
Sulphur	0.71
Ash	2.80
Water	12.75

100.00

The colour of the ash is greyish white, and it is light and bulky.

COKING TEST.—When a portion of the coal is heated in a covered vessel, the gases given off burn with a yellow, luminous, smoky flame, and a very slightly coherent, somewhat bright, coke-like residue is left; no true coke being formed. The percentage results obtained are as follows:—

Coke-like residue...	49.50
Gases	37.75
Water	12.75

100.00

When small lumps of the coal are exposed to furnace heat, each lump splits more or less on the surface, exfoliates, and burns with a long smoky flame.

REMARKS.—The coal belongs to the class called "lignites," which are characterized by a much larger proportion of water, which enters into their composition, than occurs in the so-called "bituminous coals." Many lignites resemble bituminous coals in external appearance, and contain from 9 to 25 per cent. or more of water. Lignites of similar composition to this occur in New Zealand, Tasmania, and other localities. The ash is small in proportion, and is so far favorable. The sulphur is less in amount than occurs in some coals, and is so far favorable in gas-making and other purposes. It is probably present partly in organic combination and partly combined with iron as iron pyrites.

The physical characters of the coal are favourable, and would enable it to bear carriage or transit without breaking up.

The coal cannot be employed for making coke.

The coal may be used for the production of gas, as the gases given off on heating are fairly illuminating. The coal would not yield any "gas coke," but the coke-like residue left in the retorts may probably be utilised in some way as fuel.

The coal is of the "non-caking" or "free-burning" class, and would be available as a fuel for raising steam, and also for general use for household and other purposes.

Generally, it may be regarded as a very good coal of its class.

I am, &c.,
RICHARD SMITH,
Of the Royal School of Mines.

Sir Frederick Napier Broome,
17, Elm Park Gardens, S.W.

Metallurgical Laboratory,
Royal School of Mines,
Exhibition Road, S.W.,
March 27th, 1890.

DEAR SIR,

I now reply to the further inquiries respecting the coal from Western Australia.

(1.) Coal of the lignite class is extensively used for locomotive and other purposes, on the continent of Europe, Prussia, Austria, Saxony, Bohemia, Hungary, etc.; one of the best of this class occurs at Teplitz, Bohemia. It also occurs in the South of France, Sardinia, British North America, etc. I do not think it likely that there would be a demand for this variety of coal for export, unless it was to localities without coal of any description. The New South Wales coals are of the "bituminous" class, and of a superior character, quite equal to some of the best British coals. Compared with coals of this character or class, lignites would be inferior, chiefly on account of the large amount of water which they contain.

(2.) Lignites generally occur in tertiary or recent formations; there is therefore a possibility that the true carboniferous or other formation, carrying coal, may be found below. This can only be determined by an examination of the geological structure of the country in the locality where this coal has been found. That should be the first point to settle before any money is expended in sinking deeper. There is a Geologist at Perth; he can probably help you.

Yours, &c.,
RICHD. SMITH.
