No. 6725.—C.S.O.

Colonial Secretary's Office,
Perth, 9th July, 1896.

HIS Excellency the Governor in Executive Council has been pleased to confirm the following By-laws made by the Municipal Council of Geraldton under "The Building Act, 1884."

OCT. BURT,

Under Secretary.

By-Laws.

For the Regulation of the Construction of Buildings in the Municipality of Geraldton, under the provisions of "The Building Act, 1884," and "The Building Act Amendment Act, 1887."

Interpretation Clause.

1. The several words mentioned in the second Section of the Building Act, 1884, shall, where used in these By-laws, have the same construction as is provided for by such section, except that the words "Council," "Mayor," "Town Clerk" and "Surveyor" shall mean the Council, Mayor, Town Clerk or Surveyor, respectively, of the Municipality of Geraldton.

Notice of intention to build.

2. Every person intending to commence to build, take down, alter, add to, or repair any building, or do any act whereby any public street may be obstructed or rendered dangerous or inconvenient to persons passing over or near thereto shall give three clear days' notice, in writing, to the Town Surveyor of his intention so to do. Such notice shall be delivered at the Town Surveyor's office, and shall contain particulars of the site and nature of such intended building, work, or other act, and shall be in form "A" of the Schedule hereto. The Surveyor shall thereupon give such directions as he shall think fit for the erection of hoardings or fences, and a platform and handrail for the protection of passengers, and such directions shall be complied with to the satisfaction of the Surveyor before the commencement of such building, work, or act. Every breach of this By-law shall subject the person guilty of such breach to a penalty of £5, and a further penalty of £1 for each day the same continues, recoverable in a summary manner before Justices.

Notice of intention to use area in public street, &c., for deposit of materials.

3. Every person wishing to deposit any stones, bricks, lime, rubbish, timber, iron, or other materials on any public street, or to make any excavation on any land abutting on or adjoining or contiguous to any public street shall first make application for and obtain from the Surveyor a license so to do. Such application and license shall be made in the form "B" in the Schedule hereto; and in such application he shall state the place and extent of the site he wishes to so occupy, and shall pay the fees for such site according to the scale marked "C" in the Schedule, and shall then occupy the site subject to the conditions stated in such license. Any infringement of this By-law shall subject the person guilty of such infringement to a fine of £5 for every day such infringement continues, to be recovered in a summary manner before Justices.

Hoardings to be kept in repair.

4. Every person who shall be required to erect any hoarding, fence, platform, or handrail under the two last preceding By-laws shall keep the same in good and sufficient repair to the satisfaction of the Surveyor so long as it shall, in his opinion, be necessary for the public safety; and every such person shall, immediately upon receipt of notice from the Surveyor that such hoarding, fence, platform, or handrail is out of repair and requiring him to repair same, repair the same to the satisfaction of the Surveyor, and shall be liable to a penalty of £1 for every day the same shall continue in disrepair after the receipt by him of such notice.

Hoardings, &c., to be lighted.

5. Every person erecting such hoarding, fence, platform, or handrail, or obstruction of any kind in the public street, or any excavation as aforesaid, shall cause the same to be well and sufficiently lighted at night, and shall be liable to a penalty of £1 for every night on which the same is not so lighted.

Deposit to be made to cover cost of removing deposits, &c.

6. Every person erecting such hoarding, fence, platform, or handrail, or obstruction of any kind in the public street, shall pay to the Council, before the commencement of such erection or work, such sum as in the opinion of the Surveyor will be sufficient to remove the same, and fill up any excavation, and repair any damage done to the public street, and if any person shall, within a reasonable time, fail to remove the same, or fill up such excavation, and repair any damage done to the street, the sum so paid by him shall be forfeited to the Council, who may thereupon proceed to remove the same, and fill up any excavation and repair any damage done to the public street.

Power to Surveyor to enforce preceding By-laws.

7. It shall be lawful for the Surveyor, without reference to the Council, to take immediate steps to enforce any of the preceding By-laws, and he may cause any such hoarding, or other obstruction that has been erected without his license, or which has been erected, or continued in breach of the conditions of any such license, to be removed, or any such excavation to be filled in, or injuries to the public street repaired at the cost and expense of the person erecting or making the same, and such costs and expenses shall be recoverable from the person so making the same, as well as the penalties hereinbefore imposed.

Notice of intention to build, &c.

8. Every person intending to erect any building or to alter or add to any building now erected within the city boundaries shall, one week before commencing to erect or alter or add to the same, deposit with the Surveyor drawings showing the plan, elevation, and section of such proposed building, together with full and complete specifications thereof, and also a plan of the locality showing the position of such building as provided for by Section 5 of the Building Act Amendment Act, 1887, and shall also therewith pay to the Surveyor fees provided therefor in the Schedule hereto: And no buildings shall hereafter be erected or re-erected and built within the city so far as regards putting walls, height and thickness of parapets, external walls, and flues and fireplaces in any such buildings, except upon the terms and conditions of these By-laws and the Schedule hereto, which Schedule shall be read as part of these By-laws, and any person offending herein shall forfeit and pay for each offence, a sum not less than £5 nor more than £10.

Buildings to be divided into three classes.

9. All buildings of whatever kind, subject to the provisions of these By-laws, shall be deemed to belong to one or other of the three following classes, that is to say:—

FIRST CLASS.

If building be built originally as a dwelling house, or for an office, or suits, or sets of chambers, or offices, or be occupied or intended to be occupied as such, then it is to be deemed to belong to the first or dwelling house class.

SECOND CLASS.

If a building be built originally as a warehouse, storehouse, granary, brewery, distillery, manufactory, workshop, or public stable, or be occupied or intended to be occupied as such or for a similar purpose, then it is to be deemed to belong to the second or warehouse class.

THIRD CLASS.

If a building be built originally as a church, chapel, or other place of public worship, college, hall, hospital, theatre, public concert room, public ball room, public lecture room, public exhibition room, or occupied or intended to be occupied as such, or for a similar purpose, or otherwise used or intended to be used, either temporarily or permanently, for the assemblage of persons in large numbers, whether for purposes of public worship, business, instruction, debate, diversion, or resort, then it is to be deemed to belong to the third or public building class.

ALTERATION OF CLASS.

And if any room, whether constructed within any building or not, and whether included in the aforesaid classes or not, to be used at any time for the public or general congregation of persons, then the building containing such room is to be deemed a building of the third or public building class. Or if a building, originally built or subsequently altered so as to bring it within any one class, be subsequently converted into or used as a building of another class, then it is to be deemed to belong to such other class, and as to it all the conditions prescribed with regard to buildings of the same rate of such other class must be fulfilled as if it had been originally built of such class, subject nevertheless to such modifications as shall be sanctioned by the surveyor on supervision thereof. Or if a building be used partly as a dwelling house and partly for any purpose which would bring it within the second or warehouse class, then it is to be deemed to belong to the said second or warehouse class, and as to it all the conditions prescribed with regard to buildings of the same rate of such class must be fulfilled as if it had been originally built of such class, subject nevertheless to such modifications as shall be sanctioned by the surveyor on supervision thereof.

10. The buildings included in the said classes are to be deemed to belong to the rates of those classes, and shall be built in manner according to the conditions of height, area, and number of stories set forth in the tables set out in the Schedule hereto, which conditions are to be determined according to the following rules:—

RULES FOR ASCERTAINING HEIGHT.

- (a.) The height of every building is to be ascertained by measuring from the surface of the lowest floor of the building up to the top of the wall plate for receiving the roof.

RULE FOR ASCERTAINING AREA.

- (b.) The area of every building (except the second or warehouse class) is to be determined by the number of squares contained in the surface of any floor which shall contain the greatest number of squares at or above the principal entrance to such building, including in such surface the area of all the external walls and such portions of the party walls as belong to such building; but excluding from such surface the area of any attached building or office, area, balcony, or open portico.

RULE FOR ASCERTAINING THE CAPACITY OF ANY BUILDING OF THE SECOND CLASS.

- (c.) The capacity or cubical contents of any such building is to be ascertained by measuring within the walls at the surface of the floor at the principal entrance of such building and from the surface of the lowest floor to the top of the wall plate for receiving the roof.

RULE FOR ASCERTAINING NUMBER OF STORIES.

- (d.) The stories of every building are to be counted from the foundation upwards: And if the space in height between the top of the footing and the level of the lowest floor does not exceed 5ft. then the story nearest the foundation is to be considered the lowest or first story, and in that case the top of the footing is to be considered the level of the lowest floor.

RULE FOR ASCERTAINING THICKNESS OF WALLS.

- (e.) The thickness or width of every wall, and of the footing thereof is to be ascertained by measuring only the thickness or width of such walls or footings as shall have been originally built.

11. With regard to any building of the second class hereafter built or re-built in reference to the capacity or contents thereof within the same enclosing walls.—Such building shall not contain more than 400,000 cubic feet between the enclosing walls of such building, and where such building exceeds 200,000 cubic feet the walls thereof shall be increased 4 inches in thickness from the foundation upward beyond the thickness prescribed in the conditions in the Schedule hereto, part 3 for buildings not containing more than 200,000 cubic feet.

Buildings of Third Class.

12. If any building of the third or public building class correspond in form or structure or disposition with a dwelling-house then the rate thereof is to be determined by the same rule as the rates of the first or dwelling-house class, and the thickness of the external and party walls, and the width of the footings thereof are to be at the least four inches more than is required for the external and party walls, and the footings thereof of buildings of the same rate of the first or dwelling-house class unless the Surveyor in each case shall otherwise appoint: But if it correspond in form or structure or disposition with a warehouse or any building of the second class, then the rate thereof is to be determined by the same rules as the rates of the second or warehouse class, and the thickness of the external and party walls and the width of the footings thereof are to be at the least 4 inches more than is hereby registered for the external and party walls and the footings thereof of buildings of the same rate of the second or warehouse class, unless the Surveyor in each case shall otherwise appoint: But if it do not correspond in form and structure, or in either with buildings of the first or second class or any of them, then such building is to be subject, as to its walls or other construction, to the special approval of the Surveyor, and every building of the third class shall be constructed with proper and sufficient escape doors to afford egress therefrom in case of fire, such doors, and the approaches thereto, to be so constructed to the satisfaction of the Surveyor in each case, and such doors shall, during the use of such building for the purpose of any assembly of people, be kept unfastened and so that they may be readily opened from the inside, and such doors shall in all cases be constructed so as to open outward.

Foundations of Walls.

13. With regard to the foundations of walls.—Every external wall and every party wall and every party fence wall must be built upon a constructed footing based upon solid ground or upon other sufficient foundation.

- (a.) With regard to footings of walls in reference to the materials thereof, every footing must be built of brick or stone or artificial stone, or of such bricks and stone together laid in with mortar or cement in such manner as to produce solid work.
- (b.) In reference to the width thereof, the bottom of the footing of every external wall and party wall of the first rate must be at the least 8in. wider than the wall standing thereon; and the bottom of every footing of every external wall and party wall of the second and third rates must be at the least 6in. wider than the wall standing thereon; and the bottom of the footing of every external wall and party wall of the fourth rate, and of every party fence wall, must be at the least 4in. wider than the wall standing thereon; and the top of the footing of every party fence wall and of every external wall and party wall must be at least 4in. wider than the wall standing thereon; and no footing of any external wall shall be built more than 2in. on the ground of the adjoining owner.
- (c.) In reference to the height above the foundation the footing of every external wall and party wall must not be brought up nearer to the surface of the ground area or footway adjoining thereto than 3in. The footing of every external wall and party wall of the first rate must be at the least 11in. high above the foundation. The footing of every external wall and party wall of the second and third rates must be at the least 8in. high above the foundation. The footing of every party fence wall, and of every external wall and party wall of the fourth rate, must be at least 5in. high above the foundation.
- (d.) In reference to the depth thereof below the surface of the lowest floor adjoining or intended to adjoin thereto, the top of the footing of every external wall must be at the least 6in. below such surface, and in any buildings of the first class the surface of the earth or of any paving on the outside, except the pavement of any public way, must not at any time be raised to within 6in. of the surface of the lowest or first floor of such building.

14. With regard to the enclosing walls to stories of buildings of the first and second classes.—Each of the enclosing walls of any such story throughout the whole height thereof, from the top of the footing up to the top of such story, and with all the sets off in addition required for such wall to whatever rate or whichever class it may belong, and throughout at least one-third of the whole length of such wall in piers properly distributed, must be of the following dimensions (unless cross or return walls, coursed and bonded with the enclosing walls, shall, in the opinion of the Surveyor, upon application to him in each particular case, give sufficient strength with less thickness in such enclosing walls), that is to say:—As to first class buildings, if the height of the story be more than 11ft., then the thickness of its enclosing walls must be at the least 14in.; or if the story be in height more than 15ft., then the thickness of its enclosing walls must be at the least 17½in. As to second class buildings, if the story be in height more than 9ft., then the thickness of its enclosing walls must be at the least 14in.; or if the story be in height more than 12ft., then the thickness of its enclosing walls must be at the least 17½in.; or if the story be in height more than 20ft., then the thickness of its enclosing walls must be at the least 21½in. Nevertheless, as to any external wall of any building of the first class in which there are no apertures or recesses, if there be another external wall and a cross wall of not less than 8½in. thick coursing and bonding with such external wall, or if two such cross walls occur within 24ft. of such wall, then such external wall may be built of the thickness of 13in. of any height not exceeding 18ft. within any story, although the rate of the wall may require a greater thickness, but always upon the condition that the substructure of such wall is 4in. thicker at the least than such superstructure and vertically under it: And also, if any such wall be abutted by cross or return walls within a length of 12ft., and not more than one aperture or recess occur in such 12ft., and not more than one-half the quantity in length be taken out of such compartment of a wall by such aperture or recess, then such external wall may be built of any thickness not less than 13in., notwithstanding the rate of such wall may require a greater thickness.

15. With regard to the component materials of external walls to buildings of whatever class.—Every such wall must be built of brick or stone or artificial stone, or such brick or stone or artificial stone together laid in and with mortar or cement in such manner as to produce solid work, and every such wall must be carried up of its full thickness to the underside of the plate under the roof. Nevertheless, in such walls recesses may be formed so that the back thereof be of the thickness of 8½in., and so that the stability and sufficiency of the wall be not injuriously affected by making such recesses.

Wood, &c., in external walls.

16. With regard to other substances than the component materials of external walls.—There may be such wood and iron as shall be necessary, and every plate, lentel, bond, corbel, being of wood, and every wood brick laid into any external wall, and all the ends of joists, of girders, and of the heads of sills and partitions running into any external walls must be fixed at a distance from the external face of the wall of 4in. at the least, except ceiling joists, which may go through the wall provided a sufficient corbel be formed to separate one building from another at the line of the party and external walls: And the frames of doors and windows must be fixed in reveals at a distance from the external face of the wall of 4in. at the least: And shop fronts must be built in such manner as is herein specially directed: And the tiers of door cases to warehouses must be fixed in the opening left in such wall, at a distance from the external face of the wall of 2in. at least: But no timber must be laid into any external wall in such manner or of such length as to render the part of the wall above it wholly or in great part dependent upon the wood for support, or so that any such wood might not be withdrawn without endangering the safety of the superincumbent structure, except in the case of brestsummers.

Height and thickness of parapets.

17. With regard to external walls in reference to the height and thickness of any parapet thereon.—If an external wall adjoin a gutter, then such external wall must be carried up and remain 1ft. at the least above the highest part of such gutter, and the thickness of an external wall so carried up above the level of the underside of the gutter plate, and forming a parapet, must be at the least in every such wall of the first rate of the second class 13in. thick, and in every other external wall, of whatever rate or whichever class, 8½in. thick.

Materials to be used in re-building.

18. With regard to old external walls or other external enclosures of any buildings already built in reference to the materials used in the repair thereof.—If any such wall or enclosure be not built of the materials required by this Act for external walls or other external enclosures hereafter to be built, then every part of such wall or other external enclosure (except the enclosure of roofs and the flats, gutters, dormers, turrets, lantern lights, and other erections thereon) may be at all times thereafter repaired with materials of the same sort as those of which such external wall or enclosure has been already built.

Materials to be used in repair.

19. But if any such external wall or enclosure be at any time hereafter taken down or otherwise demolished for the height of one story, or for a space equal to one-fourth of the whole surface of such external wall, then every part thereof not built in the manner and of the several materials by these By-laws directed for external walls must be taken down, and the same must be re-built in such manner and of such materials for and in all respects as by these By-laws directed for external walls hereafter to be built, according to the class and rate of the building to which such external wall or enclosure shall belong.

20. With regard to external walls used as party walls to any building adjoining thereto (except an attached building or office, as is hereafter described.—If the external wall of any building have not such footings, and be not of such height and thicknesses, or be not built of such manner and of such materials as are herein directed for party walls of buildings of the highest rate to which such wall shall adjoin, then such external wall must not be used as a party wall for any such building, but there must be a distinct external wall built as herein described for external walls of the rate to which it shall belong: But if such external wall to any building already built be at the least 13in. in thickness in every part, and be of sound and proper materials and in good condition, then such wall may be used as a party wall; but if the house of which such wall forms a part be re-built within five years from the time at which such wall shall have been so first used as a party wall, then such wall must become subject to the provisions of these By-laws in respect of party walls, according to the class and rate to which the said wall did first belong.

Dividing walls.

21. With regard to walls used to divide single buildings into two or more.—If it be intended to divide any building into two or more distinct parts, then every wall for that purpose must be built as a party wall in the manner and of the materials and of the several heights and thicknesses for party walls of the highest rate of building to which such party wall shall belong or adjoin, as prescribed in reference to the thickness of party walls in the conditions set forth in the Schedule hereto: And if any building already built, or which shall be hereafter built, be converted, used, or occupied as two or more separate buildings, each having a separate entrance or staircase, such conversion, use, or occupation not having been made or not having taken place prior to this By-law coming into operation, then every such building shall be deemed to be two or more separate houses, and such separate houses must be divided from each other by a party wall or party arch or arches, built in the manner and of the materials required for party walls or for party arches for the class and rate to which the largest of the buildings so divided shall belong.

Party walls, with reference to site thereof.

21a. With regard to party walls, with reference to the site thereof.—If the buildings be of equal rate, then such party walls must be built on the line of junction of such buildings—one half on the ground of the owner of one of such buildings and one half on the ground of the owner of the other of such buildings. If such buildings be of different rates, then such wall must be built on the line of junction thereof as follows:—That is to say, one-half of the thickness of the wall required for the building of the lower rate on the ground of each of the adjoining owners, and the whole of the additional thickness of the wall required for the building of the higher rate on the ground of the owner of such building of the higher rate: And if such building of the lower rate be thereafter enlarged or altered so as to become a building of the higher rate, then the owner of such first-mentioned building of the higher rate for the time being shall be entitled to receive from the owner of such building of the lower rate such sum of money as shall be sufficient compensation for the ground occupied by that portion of the party wall which, according to the rate of the building enlarged, ought to have been built by its owner on his own ground as well as the value of so much of the wall itself as may be more than the owner of such building of the lower rate had already paid for.

22. Party walls in reference to the component materials thereof.—Every part of such party wall must be built of sound bricks or stone or artificial stone, or of such bricks or stone or artificial stone together laid in and with mortar or cement, and in such manner as to produce solid work: And as to the woodwork which it may be desired to connect with the party walls of any building, the bearing ends of wooden beams, brestsummers, girders, trimming joists, and the ends of partitions, heads and sills, and the bearing ends of the main timbers of any roof and wood bricks may be laid into the substance of a party wall; but no such beam, brestsummer, girder, joist, partition, head, or sill, nor any part of a roof being wood, nor any wood bricks, must be laid or placed within 2in. of the centre of any party wall; and no other woodwork of any kind must be laid into, placed upon, or be run or driven into any part of the substance of any party wall: But if the ends of timbers be carried in iron shoes or stone corbels, then such iron shoes or stone corbels must be built into the wall at least one-half the thickness of such wall; and the top of every such party wall must be finished with one course of sound, hard bricks, set on edge in good mortar or cement, or by a coping of any other properly secured and sufficiently water-proof and fire-proof covering.

Height of party walls.

23. With regard to the party walls, with reference to the height thereof.—If a party wall adjoin any roof, then such party wall must be carried up and remain 1ft. 6in. at the least above the part where the party wall and roof adjoin, measured at a right angle with the back of the rafters of such roof: And if any party wall in any building of the first class adjoin a gutter, then such party wall must be carried up and remain 2ft. at the least above the highest part of any such gutter: And if any party wall in any building of the second class adjoin a gutter, then such party wall must be carried up and remain 3ft. at least above the highest part of any such gutter. If there be fixed within 5ft. of a party wall, upon the flat or roof of a building, any turret, dormer, lantern light, or other erection of combustible materials, then every such party wall must be carried up next to every such turret, dormer, lantern light, or other erection, and must extend 1ft. 6in. higher and 1ft. 6in. wider than any such erection on each side thereof.

24. For the purpose of regulating the making of openings through any party wall between one dwelling-house and another, whereby two or more dwelling-houses shall be united with regard to any dwelling-houses of any rate, such dwelling-houses may be united by openings in the party walls, and with regard to any such dwelling-houses which, when so united, shall be and continue to be in the same occupation, then, upon its being declared by the Surveyor that, in his opinion, the stability of any or either of such dwelling-houses will not be endangered by such opening, they may be made accordingly.

Recesses, &c., in party walls.

25. With regard to recesses and chases in any party wall.—In every story recesses may be formed, but only with the consent and authority of the Surveyor first had been obtained, and so that such recesses be arched over, and so that the back of any such recess be not nearer than 7 inches to the centre of the party wall in the 1st or lowest story, or nearer than 4 inches to the centre of the party wall in any other story, and so that the stability and sufficiency of such party wall be not injuriously affected thereby. If any chases be required for the insertion of ends of walls, of piers, of chimney jambs, of withes, of flues, of metal pipes, or of iron story posts, then every chase for any such purpose must not be left or cut nearer than 4 inches at the least to the centre of a party wall, nor within a distance of 9 inches at the least from any front or back wall, and no such chases must be made within a distance of 7ft. 6in. at the least from each other on the same side of a wall, and no such chase must be formed wider than 9 inches.

26. With regard to any building already built having rooms, the property of different owners, which lie intermixed without being separated by any party wall.—If any such building be altogether rebuilt, or to the extent of quarter of the cubical contents thereof, then such intermixed properties must be separated from each other by a party wall constructed in conformity to these By-laws.

27. With regard to buildings hereafter to be built or rebuilt.—In reference to projections therefrom as to copings, parapets, cornices to overhanging roofs, blocking courses, piers, columns, pilasters, entablatures, facias, door and window dressings, or other architectural decorations, forming part of an external wall; all such must be built of the same materials as are by these By-laws directed to be used for building external walls, to which such projections belong or of such other proper and sufficient materials as the Surveyor may approve and permit, and as to all verandahs, porches, porticoes, shop fronts, open enclosures of open areas, and steps and waterpipes, and to all other projections from external walls, not forming part thereof, every such projection must be built of brick tile, stone, artificial stone, slate, cement, or metal, or other fireproof material, and such projections must be so built as not to overhang the ground belonging to any other owner nor to obstruct the light or air, or to be otherwise injurious to the owner or occupier of the buildings adjoining thereto on any side thereof, nor shall any such projections extend beyond the building line at any height less than 10ft. from the level of the public footway, nor encroach upon the building line of any public footway, except that the base or plinth thereof may project beyond the building line to an extent of 4in. in streets of 99ft. width, and 2½in. in streets of less width, and no projections, including steps, cellar doors, and area enclosure, are to encroach upon the building line of any public footway, and no verandah must approach nearer to the end of the house to which it belongs than 2 feet, unless built wholly of fireproof material or separated from any adjoining verandah or premises by putting walls at least 8½in. in thickness, and with regard to the projecting eaves of any building built of brick or stone, such eaves may project beyond the face of the external wall, provided such eaves be at least 5ft. from the ground, not in the same occupation, and be at least 10 feet clear from the eaves of any other building built of brick or stone, and 18 feet from the eaves and walls of any wooden building.

28. And with regard to buildings already built or hereafter to be built as to bow windows or other projections of any kind.—Such projections must neither be built with or added to any building or any face of an external wall thereof so as to extend beyond the building line in any street, except so far as is hereinbefore provided with regard to projections from face wall and shop fronts, nor so as to overhang the ground belonging to any other owner, nor so as to obstruct the light and air, or be otherwise injurious to the owners or occupiers of the buildings adjoining thereto on any side thereof: Provided, however, with regard to any insulated buildings that if the projections be at the least 8ft. from any public way, and if they be at the least 30 feet from any other building not in the same occupation, then such projections are excepted from the rules and directions of this By-law.

Shop fronts, &c.

29. With regard to shop fronts and their entablatures, their shutters and stall boards made of wood.—If the street or alley in which such front is situate be of less width than 33ft., then no such shop front must be higher in any part thereof than 15ft.; nor must any part, except the cornice, project from the face of the wall, whether there be an area of or not more than 2in.; nor must the cornice project therefrom more than 8in. If the street or alley be of greater width than 33ft., then no part of such shop front, except the cornice, must project from the face of the wall, whether there be an area or not, more than 4in.; nor must the cornice project therefrom more than 12in.: And the woodwork of any shop front must not be fixed nearer than 9in. to the face of an external wall, or nearer than 4½in. to the centre line of a party wall: And with regard to such woodwork, if it be put up at such distance of 4½in., then a pier or corbel, built of stone or brick or incombustible material, to commence at the level of the underside of the plinth or bottom of the wood pilaster, and to be of the width of 8½in. at the least, must be fixed in the line of the party wall so as to be as high as such woodwork, and so as to project lin. at the least in front of the face thereof: And the height of every shop front must be ascertained by measuring from the level of the public footway or pavement in front of the building: And no showboard or signboard shall be affixed to the front of any building so as to extend over any public footway or nearer than 2ft. to the end of such building, unless such showboard or signboard abut against a brick or stone corbel, pier, or pilaster, 9in. in thickness and projecting lin. beyond the face of such showboard or signboard and carried up to the full height of the same.

Chimneys.

30. With regard to chimneys and chimney stacks (except angle chimneys) with reference to the construction.—The foundation and footings of every such chimney and chimney stack must be built similar to those of the wall in or adjoining to which it shall be, and every such chimney and chimney stack must be built from the foundation to the top thereof without any corbelling over, whereby any upper part of the brickwork of such chimney or chimney stack shall overhang any lower part of the brickwork on the front thereof. Nevertheless, with regard to buildings of the first or dwelling-house class, the jambs, breast, and flue in any single chimney may be built upon stone or iron corbels above the ceiling of the 2nd story of every such building; but the projection of both of such jambs and breasts must not in any case exceed 14in. before the face of the wall or stack to which the same shall adjoin: And with regard to angle chimneys, such chimneys may be built in the internal angle of any building, so that the width of the breast thereof do not exceed 8ft., and so that it be properly supported on iron girders with brick arches, or on strong stone landings not less than 4in. thick, and tailed at least 9in. into each of the two walls forming such angle.

Chimney Jambs.

31. In regard to chimneys with reference to the dimensions of the jambs thereof.—The jambs of every chimney shall not be less than 8½in. wide on each side of such opening: And with regard to chimneys and flues in reference to the thickness of the brickwork thereof, the breast of every chimney and the front, back, width, or partition of every flue must be at least 4in. in thickness of bricks, and the joints of the work must be filled in with good mortar or cement, and all the inside thereof, and also the outside or face thereof next the interior of any building, must be rendered or pargetted: And with regard to flues in reference to the dimensions thereof, no flue may be used for a smoke flue which is of less internal diameter in any section than 8½in.

Timber in Chimneys.

32. With regard to chimneys in reference to timber.—No timber must be placed over any opening for supporting the breast of any chimney; but there must be an arch of brick or stone over the opening of every such chimney to support the breast thereof; and an iron bar must be built into the jambs at the least 9in. on each side, to tie in the abutments whenever the breast projects more than 4½in. from the face of the wall, and the jamb on either side is of less width than two-thirds of the opening: And no timber or woodwork must be placed or laid in any wall under any chimney-opening within 18in. at least of the surface of the hearth to the fire-place of such chimney-opening: And as to the timber or woodwork in reference to the fixing thereof in or against any wall containing flues, or against any chimney breast or chimney jamb, if timber or woodwork be affixed to the front of any jamb or mantel, or to the front or back of any chimney or flue, then it must be fixed by iron nails or holdfasts, or other iron fastenings, which must not be or be driven nearer than 4in. to the inside of any flue or to the opening of any chimney, and such timber or woodwork must not be nearer than 2in. to the opening or any chimney, and no timber must be laid or placed within 3in. of the face or breast, back, side, or jamb of any flue, or of any chimney-opening where the substance of brickwork or stonework shall be less than 8½in. thick; nor must any flooring, batten, ground skirting or other lining or fitting of wood, nor any wood staircase or anything else of wood, be fixed or placed against or near to the face or breast, back, side, or jamb of any flue, fire-place, or chimney-opening unless and until the brick or stone work constituting the same shall have been well and sufficiently rendered or pargetted with proper mortar or stucco, and such rendering must be in every case in addition to 4in. at least of solid fire-proof structure.

Hearthstone.

33. A slab or slabs of brick, tile, stone, slate, marble, or other proper and sufficient substance at the least 12in. longer than the opening of every chimney when finished, and at the least 18in. in front of the arch over the same must be laid before the opening of every chimney: And in every floor, except the lowest floor, such slab or slabs must be laid wholly upon stone or iron bearers or upon brick trimmers; but in the lowest floor they may be laid on a brick fender or bedded on the solid ground: And the hearth of every chimney must be laid and bedded wholly on brick or stone or other incombustible substance, which must be solid for a thickness of 9in. at least beneath the surface of any such hearth.

Backs of Chimneys.

34. As to the back of any chimney-opening of every building (except backs of chimneys of the lowest story of buildings of the 4th rate).—Every such back in the lowest story must be at the least 13in. thick from the hearth to the height of 12in. above the mantel, and in every other story at the least 8½in. thick up to the same relative height: And as to the backs of chimney-openings in the lowest story of buildings of the fourth rate, such backs must be at the least 8½in. thick to the height of 12in. at the least above the level of the mantel. If two chimneys be built back to back, then the thickness between the same must be at the least of the thickness hereinbefore described for the back of one chimney-opening.

Flues in Chimneys.

35. As to flues in reference to the angles thereof.—If any flue be built with sufficient openings in it of not less size than 9in. square, and proper close iron doors and frames inserted in such openings, so that every part of such flue may be swept by machinery, then every angle of such flue may be of any degree; but if it is not so built, then every such angle must be 135 degrees at the least: And every salient or projecting angle within a flue must be rounded off 4in. at the least, and protected by a rounded stone or iron bar.

Ovens, furnaces, &c.

36. As to every oven, furnace, cokel, or close fire used for the purpose of trade or manufacture.—It must be at the least 6in. distant from any party wall, and must not be upon or within a distance of 18in. of any timber or woodwork; and the floor on or above which such oven, furnace, cokel, or close fire shall be built or fixed, must be formed and paved under and for a distance of 2ft. all round the same with stone, brick, tile, or slate at the least 2in. thick, or other proper incombustible and non-conducting materials.

Height of chimneys, &c.

37. Every chimney, shaft, or flue hereafter built, raised or repaired, must be carried up in brick or stonework all round at the least 4in. thick, to a height of not less than 3ft. above the highest part of such portion of the roof, flat, or gutter adjoining thereto, measured at the point of junction: And as to any chimney, shaft (except that of a steam engine, brewery, distillery or manufactory), the brick or stonework of such shaft or flue must not be built higher than 8ft. above the slope, flat, or gutter of the roof which it adjoins, measured from the highest point of junction, unless such chimney shaft shall be built of increased thickness, or be built with and bonded to another chimney shaft, or be otherwise rendered secure: And as to the chimney shaft for the boiler furnace of any steam engine, or for any brewery, distillery or manufactory, such shaft may be erected of any height so that it be built in such manner and of such strength and dimensions as shall be satisfactory to the surveyor upon special application in each case.

Chimney Pots.

38. As to earthen or metal chimney pots, tubes, funnels, or cowls of any description whatsoever.—If such pot, tube, funnel, or cowl be higher than 4ft. above the brick or stone work of the flue upon which the same shall be placed then it must be fixed 2ft. at the least into the brick or stone work of the flue on which it shall be placed.

Metal, Steam, &c., Pipes.

39. As to any metal or other pipe or funnel for conveying smoke, heated air, or steam.—Such pipe or funnel must not be fixed against or in front of any face of any building in any street or alley, nor on the inside of any building nearer than 14in. to any timber or other combustible material.

Cutting Chimney Shafts, &c.

40. As to every chimney shaft, jamb, breast, or flue already built, or which shall be hereafter built, in reference to cutting the same.—No such erection shall be cut into for any other purpose than the repair thereof, or for the formation of soot doors, or for letting in, removing, or altering stove pipes or smoke jacks, except as directed for building an external wall against an old sound party wall, and except for inserting a ventilating valve, such cutting not to be nearer than 6in. to any timber or other combustible substance, and that every part of such valve be made and fixed with incombustible materials.

Roof Coverings, &c.

41. With regard to roof coverings in reference to the materials thereof.—If the external parts of any roof, flat, or gutter of any building, or of any projection therefrom, or of any projection therefrom, or of any dormer, turret, lantern light, or other erection on the roof or flat of any building be hereafter built or rebuilt, stripped, ripped, or uncovered, then every such part (except the door frames and doors, window frames and sashes of such turrets, dormers, lantern lights, or other erections) must be covered with slates, tiles, or hardwood, shingles, metal, glass, artificial stone, or cement, and such excepted parts shall be made of such wood as shall be necessary.

Roofs to Buildings.

42. With regard to the roof, flat, and gutter of any building, and of any projection therefrom, and also balconies, verandahs, and shop fronts.—They must be so arranged and constructed, and so supplied with gutters and pipes as to prevent the water therefrom dropping on, out, or running over any public way, and all such rain pipes, eaves, and gutters are to be made of metal.

Drains to Buildings.

43. With regard to the drains of buildings of any class, and of every addition thereto.—Before the several walls of any such buildings shall have been built to the height of 10ft. from their foundations, the drains thereof must have been properly built and made good; that is to say, if there be within 100ft. from any front of the building a common sewer into which it is lawful and practicable to drain, then into such common sewer, and if there be not in such situation and within such distance any such common sewer, then to the best outlet that can be obtained so as to render, in either case, drains available for the drainage of the lowest floor of such building or addition thereto, and also of its areas, water closets, privies, and offices, if any, and the inside of the main drains under and from every building for carrying off soil must be in a transverse section at the least equal to a circular area of 9in. in diameter, and every such drain must be laid to a sufficient fall or current, so as that the whole of every such drain within the walls of such building shall be wholly covered over under the lowest floor independently thereof, and every such drain within the walls of such building must be built and covered over with bricks, stone, or slate, and so as to render the drain air tight, and generally all drains shall be laid and built to the approval of the Surveyor.

Covering footpaths, &c.

44. In the case of any building being erected abutting on the footpath of a public street or of any plastering operations being intended to be performed above the first story of any building, the builder or other persons having charge of such building, or the plasterer shall, before proceeding to build further than the first story of such building so being erected, or with any plastering as aforesaid, give notice thereof in writing to the Town Surveyor in form C in the Schedule hereto, who shall thereupon give directions to such builder, person, or plasterer for the covering of such footpath as he shall think fit, and any builder, person, or plasterer who shall fail to give such notice or shall proceed with such building or plastering without having complied in all respects with the directions of the Town Surveyor, or without keeping such covering or other erection directed by him in an efficient state of repair to the satisfaction of such Surveyor, shall incur a penalty of £5 for each day in which such default shall occur or continue.

Back yards.

45. With regard to back yards or open spaces attached to dwelling houses.—Every house hereafter built or rebuilt must have an enclosed back yard or open space of at least two squares, exclusive of any building thereon unless all the rooms of such house can be lighted and ventilated from the street.

Lowermost Rooms.

46. And with regard to the lowermost rooms of houses, being rooms of which the surface of the floor is more than 3ft. below the surface of the footway of the nearest street or alley, and to cellars or buildings hereafter to be built or rebuilt.—If any such room or cellar cannot be otherwise lighted, the same may be lighted by means of apertures or areas extending under the footway: Provided such apertures or areas be enclosed by solid masonry to the satisfaction of the Surveyor, and be covered with an horizontal iron grating level with the surface of such footway: Provided that no such aperture, area, or grating do not extend from the line of building under the footway more than 4ft., nor be more 6ft. in width.

Privies.

47. Every privy, whether already built or hereafter to be built, in the yard or area of any building or under any street or alley must have a door, and be properly enclosed, screened and fenced from public view.

Attic Rooms.

48. And with regard to rooms in the roof of any building hereafter built or re-built in reference to the number of floors of rooms in the roof, and to the height of such rooms.—There must not be more than one floor of such rooms, and such rooms must not be of a less height than 7ft., except the sloping part thereof, if any, of such roof, which sloping part must not begin less than 3ft. 6in. above the floor, or extend more than 3ft. 6in. on the ceiling of such room.

Rooms in regard to height.

49. With regard to rooms in other parts of the building in reference to the height thereof.—Every room used or intended to be used for the purposes of habitation must be at the least the height of 7ft. from floor to ceiling.
