1. The licensing officer shall issue licenses to such owners, conductors and drivers of hackney carriages and vehicles as in his discretion are fit to be entrusted therewith.
2. The licensing officer shall not license any person as driver of any licensed vehicle unless and until he is satisfied the person so offering himself as a driver is fit and competent for the duties of a licensed driver; but he may at his option grant to such applicant a temporary license for a term not exceeding ten days by way of testing his competency for the position of licensed driver.
3. Every driver or conductor's licenses issued under the authority hereof shall be in force from the 10th day of January in the year of issue, or any subsequent date of the year of issue, until the 10th day of January in the following year, unless in the meantime any such license shall be revoked or cancelled, as next hereafter provided; and the licensing officer shall take and receive the sum of two shillings and sixpence for every such license issued.
4. The license of any owner, driver or conductor may for any misconduct be revoked, cancelled or suspended by the licensing officer as he shall deem right after notice given to such owner, driver or conductor, to show cause why the same should not be revoked, cancelled or suspended, and opportunity thereupon given to him to show such cause.
5. 6. 32. The fares and rates to be charged by the owners and drivers of all licensed public passenger vehicles plying for hire within the town of North Fremantle and within nine miles from the corporate limits of the said town shall be as set forth in the Schedule hereto marked A and shall be deemed to be the fares and rates which may be lawfully demanded, received or taken by the owner or driver of any licensed vehicle as aforesaid, provided that such fares and rates shall be inclusive of all charges for luggage not exceeding 28 pounds weight for each passenger.

1. All stock imported into Western Australia from the Australian Colonies and New Zealand shall be exempt from Section 13 of "The Stock Diseases Act of 1895," and shall be admitted to the Colony on the certificate of a Government Inspector, in addition to a declaration by the owner or breeder of the stock, or manager of the farm or station from which they come, to the effect that such stock were, at the time of departure from their farm or station, and had been for three months immediately preceding, to the best of his belief, free from disease, and had not, for such period, been in contact with diseased animals.

10. An inspector, on finding stock infected with disease, may, as he shall think fit, declare such portions of the land on which such stock may be found at the time of the discovery of the disease a quarantine area, within the boundaries of which such stock shall be kept in quarantine, or, at the discretion of the inspector, be transferred to some proclaimed quarantine area until declared clean by an inspector.

Special Rules under an Act to provide for the Regulation and the Inspection of Mines and Collieries.

*Department of Mines,
Perth, 9th August, 1899.*

THE undermentioned Special Rules to be observed at "The Collie Coalfield Proprietary Company's Colliery," in the Collie River Coal Mining District, Western Australia, are now published in conformity with the provisions of Section 43 of "The Mines Regulation Act of 1895."

H. B. LEFROY,
Minister of Mines.

Special Rules for the conduct and guidance of the persons acting in the management of "The Collie Coalfield Proprietary Company's Colliery," in the Collie River Coal Mining District, Western Australia, and of all persons engaged in, at, or about the said Colliery, whether employed by the Manager or by Contractors under his supervision.

1. An employee, on obtaining work at the Colliery, shall be supplied with a copy of the Special Rules, for which he shall give a receipt.

2. All persons employed in, at, or about the mine will not only be bound to comply and observe these rules, but are also bound to enforce their observance upon others; failing which they will subject themselves to the penalties imposed by the Mines Regulation Act in force at the time.

COLLIERY MANAGER.

3. The colliery manager shall have full charge and control over all persons employed, and of all operations in, at, or about the mine, and shall regulate the work thereof. He shall comply with the requirements of the Mines Regulation Act, and shall, to the best of his ability, employ only efficient officers for positions of responsibility, and competent workmen for carrying on the work of the mine. He shall periodically ascertain the amount of the ventilation in the mine, and cause the same to be recorded in a book kept at the Colliery Office for the purpose, and signed by the person making the record. He shall, when necessary, order locked safety lamps to be used throughout any district or by any individuals, and shall appoint a competent person to examine the lamps.

OVERMAN.

4. In the absence of the manager, the overman, who shall have daily supervision, shall have full control and charge of the mine and of all persons employed in, at, or about the colliery; he shall personally, or by his assistants, give all necessary instructions to the men and boys in the mine respecting their work, and shall be responsible for the due observance of the rules and regulations of the colliery. He shall see that the air crossings, courses, and stoppings are in good repair, and that an adequate amount of ventilation is constantly supplied to the men, and should it be ascertained that any dangerous discharge or accumulation of inflammable gas has taken place in any part of the mine, he or his subordinate officers shall see that the miners be withdrawn from such parts, and he shall adopt such measures as may seem to him most advisable for the immediate removal of the gas. He shall also cause to be put up, on all entrances to such part or parts of the mine, a danger signal, back from the said danger, beyond which all persons are prohibited from passing, except with the distinct sanction of the manager, overman, or fireman, and then only with a locked safety lamp. The overman shall, as soon as possible, report all occurrences to the manager.

5. If at any time fire-damp exists in any part of the mine in sufficient quantity to show a blue cap on the flame, or if by reason of the presence of carbonic acid gas (or choke-damp) being found in any part of the mine, all miners must instantly leave that part of the mine, and at once inform the overman or manager.

6. He shall see that the air furnaces and ventilating appliances are kept in good repair and carefully attended to. He shall examine daily, or as often as practicable, the state of the roof in the main roads and working places, and in the event of such roof being found insecure, he shall cause the same to be repaired at once. He shall also see that an adequate supply of timber is sent to the appointed stations within the mine, and that such places are properly and securely timbered. If from any cause the condition of the roof in any place is found dangerous, unless the same can be immediately remedied, the men shall be withdrawn, and he shall cause a danger signal to be placed across the road, beyond which no ordinary workman must pass without permission from the manager, overman, deputy, or fireman.

7. If at any time it is found necessary to work any bord, stall, or heading in the mine with locked safety lamps, no shot-firing shall be allowed before the place shall be examined by the overman, deputy, or fireman, or any other person specially appointed by the manager to act in such capacity, and he or they alone shall be the person or persons duly authorised to fire the shots; and if the place contains fire-damp in such quantities as to show a blue cap on the safety lamp, no shot shall be fired while the ordinary miners are within the mine, and then only if the gas has been removed. In any place worked with safety lamps the shot shall be prepared and fired in the manner directed by the manager or overman only.

The overman shall immediately report to the manager any breach of the provisions of the Mines Regulation Acts, or of these special rules, by employees, or any accident, danger, or defect in the working places or appliances, and shall record the result of his daily inspection in a book provided for this purpose.

8. The night overman shall receive his instructions nightly from the manager or overman, and he shall, so far as practicable, observe the same rules and regulations as the overman, and he shall have, during his shift or during the absence of the overman, full control over all persons employed and working in the mine.

DEPUTY.

9. The deputy, where employed, shall at all times be subject to the manager or overman, from whom he shall receive his instructions. He shall see that the men are provided with timber, and that the wheelers, trappers, and others strictly obey his lawful instructions, and, in the overman's absence, he shall have full control over all persons employed in his particular district, and see that the provisions of the Act and Special Rules are complied with. He shall also report to the manager or overman any danger that may from time to time arise either from inflammable gas or insecurity of roof, and in their absence he shall take such steps as he may think most desirable for the security of the workmen and of the mine. He shall also, without fail, report any disobedience or violation of rules, and shall, subject to the instructions of the overman, have full and sole control over the men and the amount of labour to be performed by each person employed. Any deputy failing to perform these duties will be considered to have committed an offence, and shall be liable to dismissal.

FIREMAN.

10. The fireman shall, once in every shift, and before the men enter the mine, after having once found the presence of fire-damp, carefully examine with a safety lamp the whole of the working faces and travelling roads. He shall cause to be written with chalk the day of the month in every working face so examined, and if, in his opinion, any danger is apparent, either from inflammable gas, insecurity of roof, or other cause, he shall cause a danger signal to be put up, and no person shall be admitted to work in such place until the said danger is reported to the overman or manager, and removed.

11. He shall also make a true report of, and enter and sign daily in a book kept at the colliery office for the purpose, the state of the mine, roads, doors, stoppings, and ventilating appliances. He shall instantly suspend any workman who passes the appointed station without his permission, and if he discovers any place or district to be dangerous or unsafe from the presence of inflammable or noxious gases, or other causes, he shall suspend all operations, remove all persons to a place of safety, and report the danger to his superior officers, and shall take such precautions as he may deem necessary to prevent workmen from entering or re-entering the place or district found dangerous, except for the purpose of removing the danger, until such place or district has been restored to a safe condition. He shall, during working hours, watch the ventilation and condition of roads, stoppings, airways, brattice, doors, and working places in his district, so as to reasonably insure the safety of all persons therein. He shall immediately report to his superior officer any breach of these rules and of any regulations that may be issued by the manager, in respect of shot-firing. Where safety lamps are in use, he alone, and in the manner prescribed by the manager, shall fire shots in his district; before doing so he shall examine the place where the shot is to be fired, and satisfy himself that the place is free from accumulation of gas, and that the shot might be fired with safety. He must on no account fire a shot if he considers from any cause that it would be unsafe.

12. He shall once in every week examine, so far as is practicable, the state of the waste workings and main airways, and make and sign a true report of the state thereof in a book kept at the office for the purpose.

13. In the deputy's absence he is empowered to act on his behalf, and shall report any important occurrence, disobedience, or violations of rules on the part of any employee, to the manager or overman.

COLLIERS AND WORKMEN.

14. No workman shall pass the station appointed for his district, unless authorised by the fireman, and any person failing to observe this rule will be dismissed.

15. No collier shall enter his working place, or any other part of the mine, if the same be barred with cross timbers or a danger signal. On first entering his working place he shall satisfy himself that it has been examined and found safe. If he does not observe the fireman's mark on the face, he will on no account commence his work, but shall at once return to the station and report the circumstance to the fireman, overman, or manager, and await instructions before returning to his working place. In addition to the examination by the fireman or other officials, miners and others are required to satisfy themselves as to the condition of the working places, and if they consider there is any danger, or if they discover any defect, they shall at once discontinue work. No workman shall on any pretext ride on the skips.

16. Every collier or other person employed in, at, or about the mine shall, in all matters relating to the working of the mine or safety of the workmen, strictly obey the orders of the manager, overman, deputy, or fireman, or any other person for the time being in charge of the mine or part of the mine. Every collier shall, when leaving his place of work, take care that no candle, lamp, or matches be left in his own place or any other workings that he may pass through or by, unless it be under the care of some person, nor shall he leave any gunpowder loose or unsecured, or under any pretext enter any part of the mine other than the working place where he is immediately employed, without having first obtained distinct permission to do so from the manager or the overman.

17. Every collier shall securely uphold the coal whilst holing, and shall prop up and secure the roof and sides of the bord, stall, or heading in which he may be employed, for a distance not exceeding twelve feet back from his working face, and if he should not be provided with sufficient quantity of timber, he shall cease working and report the deficiency to the manager, overman, or person in charge. It shall be the duty of every workman employed in any part of the mine to inform the person in charge of the workings of the existence of any choke-damp or fire-damp, or any insecurity of roof, shaft, or any other part of the mine, or of any air-door being damaged or left open, immediately on its being observed by him. No miner must incur any risk or danger, but shall instantly withdraw until the defect be remedied.

18. No workman shall injure any air-course, crossing, brattice, or stopping, or leave open wholly or partly any door, whereby the ventilation of the mine may be effected, or do any other act whereby the lives of the men or the property of the owners may be endangered. Should a miner tap old workings or waste, he shall at once close the opening, and inform the manager or overman.

19. The seam of coal or other mineral shall at all times be worked strictly in accordance with the directions issued by the manager or his overman, and any workman disregarding this provision will be liable to dismissal.

20. In all cases involving the use of safety lamps, every person using the same shall satisfy himself that they are securely locked, and are otherwise in good order and repair. No unauthorised person shall open any lamp, and any person having in his possession, when using any safety lamp, any matches, tobacco, pipes, or any contrivance whatever by which he could open his safety lamp, shall be instantly dismissed, and his offence shall be reported to the Crown authorities for punishment. The smoking of tobacco in any form is not permissible when safety lamps are in use. At any time when the safety lamps require to be relighted, they shall be brought to the nearest lamp station provided, where a person, duly appointed by the manager, shall be in attendance to re-examine, light, and relock the lamp. If at any time through accident, or otherwise, a lamp is found to be defective, he shall extinguish it by withdrawing the wick, and return it to the lamp station, where alone the defect shall be remedied, or another be obtained in its place. Safety lamps must not be placed within two feet of the swing of the pick, and the greatest care must be taken to prevent these lamps from being injured.

21. All workmen using safety lamps will be responsible for their condition, and shall be required to give to the lampman a satisfactory explanation as to the cause of any defect that may be found, and, in default, he shall be deemed guilty of negligence, and will be liable to dismissal, and will be reported to the Government Inspector of Collieries.

22. Where safety lamps are used, no person shall fire a shot except those specially appointed by the manager for the purpose, and the person appointed shall first satisfy himself that the operation can be conducted with safety; and all miners shall strictly obey the instructions of the manager, overman, deputy, or the shot-firer as to the method of dressing the coal before the shot shall be fired, and every precaution must be taken in order to avoid and lessen the risks of accidents caused by blown-out shots, that the same shall be assisted by holding well under the seam, and also nicking, shearing, or cutting where necessary. No shots shall be tamped with dry coal dust, but with some other moist and non-inflammable material. No person shall on any account ignite gas.

23. No shot that has missed fire shall on any account be untamped, and no person shall approach any working place where a shot has missed fire until a period of at least one hour has elapsed from the time it was lighted.

24. In other parts of the mine where shot-firing shall be allowed to be carried on by the miners, it shall be subject to the regulations as to tools and preparing the coal (as above), and to any further regulations that may from time to time be issued by the manager.

25. No person shall go beyond a danger signal, except those having special instructions from the management.

26. No person shall on any account be permitted to take the tools of another, and every one shall refrain from quarrelling, fighting, using obscene or profane language, inciting men or boys to disobedience, impeding work, or using any words whereby a breach of the peace may be occasioned. No person shall enter the mine intoxicated, or bringing intoxicating drinks to the works, or interfere with, or disobey the orders issued by the manager or overman.

27. Except the manager, no person or persons shall be permitted to place restrictions upon the amount of wages, or the amount of labour to be performed by the different workmen at the mine; and any person violating this rule, or, as aforesaid, interfering in any way with the orders issued by the manager, overman, or any other person for the time being duly in charge of the mine, shall be liable to dismissal without notice.

28. No person shall carry a greater quantity than eight pounds of gunpowder into the mine at one time, which shall be kept or carried in a secure tin or can. No steel or iron rammer shall be used. No person shall carry a naked light attached to his cap on his head whilst handling explosives, or in charging his holes for blasting.

29. Except those in charge of a train, no person shall ride in or out of the mine on a full or empty skip, or train of skips.

30. Any person employed in or about the mine, who shall violate or infringe any of the foregoing rules, shall be liable to dismissal without notice.

WHEELERS.

31. The wheelers shall diligently attend to the requirements of the colliers, and carefully attend to their horses, and shall also see that the harness is kept in a good state of repair, and will be answerable for any damage they may cause thereto. They shall also prohibit trappers from leaving their doors or riding upon the skips, and shall immediately report any insecurity of roof or road, or any damage that may have been accidentally caused, or that they may observe, to any air-crossing, door, or brattice, to the overman or person in charge. They shall at once report any appearance of gas in the roadways or working places.

TRAPPERS.

32. The trappers shall constantly remain at their respective doors, and see that they are carefully opened and closed as occasion requires. They shall also on no account ride upon the skips, leave their post, or follow the wheelers, and shall report immediately any defects in the doors to the overman or person in charge.

SET RIDER.

33. The set rider shall carefully attach the ropes to the set, and inspect the connections, etc., etc.; and if any defect is discovered, he shall at once report the same to the overman or person in charge. He shall permit no person to ride on the full or empty sets, and upon any person refusing to comply with his orders in this respect, or in any other way violating this rule, he shall immediately report the circumstance to the manager or overman.

FURNACE MAN.

34. Any person in charge of the furnace shall see that the fires are always kept in vigorous operation during the working hours, and that the bars are clean between shifts. He shall not allow any hot ashes to accumulate in the mine, and if any stoppage should occur in the ventilation he shall at once report the circumstance to the manager or overman.

MECHANICAL ENGINEER.

35. The mechanical engineer, or the person appointed for the purpose, shall at least once in every twenty-four hours carefully examine all the machinery, hauling ropes, drums, pulleys, boilers, etc., etc., and shall make a true report, stating the conditions thereof daily in a book, which must be signed by him and kept in the office of the mine for that purpose.

36. He shall, if any disarrangement is discovered in any part of the machinery, ropes etc., cause the same to be immediately remedied, and shall see that the boilers are regularly blown off, cleaned, and inspected, that all connections, pumps, safety valves, and gauges, etc., etc., are kept in good working order. He shall have control (subject to the manager) of all men in his department, who must strictly obey his instructions.

ENGINE MAN.

37. The engine-driver (subject to the mechanical engineer) shall have the sole control of the engine entrusted to his care. He shall have control of the stokers, and shall see that the steam is constantly kept up. He shall also inspect daily the engines, boilers, drums, ropes, etc., under his care, and shall immediately report any defect to the manager or mechanical engineer. He shall be in constant attendance to his engine during his shift, and on no account shall he permit any person to enter the engine-house or touch any part of the machinery, except such persons as may be appointed to do so by those in authority over him. He shall at all times pay strict attention to the various signals from the mine, and to the oiling of his engine and pulley wheels. Should he perceive anything wrong with the working of the machinery, he shall instantly stop the engine, and not proceed until the defect is put right.

SCREEN OVERSEER.

38. The screen overseer shall have charge of the platform, screens, etc. He shall report any defect that he may observe in the working thereof to the engineer or manager.

39. He shall see that the timber and rails necessary for each day's consumption are brought over to the mine, and sent down when required by the overman.

ONSETTER.

40. He shall not allow any person to interfere with the roper, and shall see that the couplings are secure before the sets are allowed to be put in motion.

RULES FOR ALL PERSONS.

41. No person acting in a place of trust shall depute any one to do his work without the sanction of the manager or the overman, and no person in a place of trust shall absent himself without having previously obtained the permission of the manager or overman to do so.

42. Employees are prohibited from entering any part of the mine, other than that in which they are immediately employed, without the distinct order of the manager or overman.

43. Every person employed at the mine shall make himself thoroughly acquainted with the provisions of the Mines Regulation Act and these Special Rules, so far as they relate to his employment and duty, and shall strictly observe the same.

44. Every person employed in connection with the mine shall give and receive, as the case may be (except for violation of Special or General Rules), fourteen days' notice before leaving the colliery.

45. No person shall injure or interfere with any air-course or crossing, brattice, stopping, or door, nor leave any door open which he found shut, or do anything to check the ventilation of the mine.

46. Every person shall go in and out of the mine by the main travelling road (unless otherwise specially directed by the overman or other superior officer).

47. No person shall open any door which should be kept shut, unless it is necessary for him to pass through it, or, by any wilful act or neglect, injure any door, brattice, air-course, or crossing, stopping, danger signal, or caution mark, nor shall he cut or fill any coal from any pillar, nor remove any timbers which are left for the support of the roof and sides; or put coals, rubbish, or any other obstruction in any other roadway, air-course, man-hole, or place of refuge; or break, injure, or put out of repair, order, or gear, any machinery or structure, nor do any other act whereby loss or inconvenience may be caused to his employers, or the work of the mine impeded, or whereby the lives or safety of the persons at the mine may be imperilled, or the mine be rendered unsafe, or any machinery or structure be made dangerous, defective, or out of order.

48. Any person who shall discover any disarrangement or defect in the ventilation, or injury to any machinery or structure, or any appearance of fire-damp, choke-damp, or water, or any fall or indication of danger in the roof, sides of headings or roads, or any broken timber, or any defect in any air-way in the mine, shall immediately give notice thereof to the overman or fireman.

49. Every person passing through a door must close it carefully after him.

50. No person shall on any account try for fire damp with a naked light.

51. No person shall leave a light in any part of the mine when quitting his work.

Extracts from Mines Regulation Act, Sections 5 and 26.

Penalties for Offences against this Act.

5. Any person who is guilty of an offence against this Act, for which no specific penalty is herein provided, shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding, if he is the owner, mining manager, or person in charge of, or giving orders or directions relating to the carrying on of any mining operations in a mine, Fifty pounds, and if he is any other person, Ten pounds for each offence, to be recovered in a summary manner before two or more Justices. The whole or any part of such penalty may be awarded by such Justices to any person injured, or to the personal representative of any person killed in consequence of any such offence, and such award shall be in addition to the right of action such person or personal representative has under this Act or otherwise.

Employees to satisfy themselves of Safety of Appliances. Failure to report Danger.

26. Every person employed in or about a mine shall, before commencing, and whilst at work, use ordinary and reasonable precaution to ascertain that the tubs, chains, tackle, windlass, ropes, or other appliances he uses are not unsafe; he shall not use anything unsafe, or apparently unsafe; and every such person who witnesses in or about the mine anything likely to produce danger of any kind shall forthwith report same to the mining manager, and on leaving work he shall report to the man relieving him the state of that part of the works where he has been employed, or otherwise he shall be guilty of an offence against this Act.
