THE following Report of the Government Astronomer on the Latitude and Longitude of the Perth Observatory is published for general information.

OCT. BURT,
Under Secretary.

Report on the Latitude and Longitude of the Perth Observatory, Western Australia.

From the Government Astronomer to the Under Secretary.

SIR,

I have the honour to submit, for the information of the Government, the accompanying Report on the Latitude and Longitude of the Perth Observatory:—

Latitude, being an absolute quantity, depends upon my own observations only. The value obtained requires a correction for the errors of division of the transit circle. These have not yet been determined, but the correction will not probably be more than a fraction of a second of arc. Longitude, being a relative quantity, required the co-operation of an observer in a locality the position of which has been already determined. Sir Charles Todd, Government Astronomer of Adelaide, kindly came to my assistance, and exchanged signals with me on five nights. The resulting difference of longitude between here and Adelaide is probably very correct. Unfortunately, however, all Australian longitudes depend upon that of Madras, and there is some doubt about the exact position of that locality. The value adopted by the Government Astronomers of New South Wales, Victoria, and Adelaide is—

5h. 20m. 59·42s.

A new determination was made by officers of the Indian Survey in 1895, which makes the longitude—

5h. 20m. 59·11s.

I have, of course, adopted the former value, so as to be in line with the other colonies, and make the position of the Perth Observatory—

Latitude 31° 57' 09·63" S.
Longitude 7h. 43m. 21·74s. E.

I have, etc.,

W. ERNEST COOKE,
Government Astronomer.

Perth Observatory, 21st September, 1899.

LONGITUDE.

A 6-inch transit circle, by Troughton & Simms, was mounted at the Observatory on Mount Eliza early in 1899. With the co-operation of Sir Charles Todd, Government Astronomer of South Australia, and through the courtesy of Mr. Sholl, Postmaster General of Western Australia, clock signals were transmitted along the telegraph line from Perth to Adelaide and vice versa on the nights of 30th March, 8th April, 10th April, 27th July, and 2nd August. Clock errors were determined by Mr. Griffiths at Adelaide and by myself at Perth, and I also observed at Adelaide for personal equation with Mr. Griffiths on 21st April, 1st May, and 8th May with a transit circle, and on 9th May and 10th May with a personal-equation machine. The resulting difference was to be subtracted from "clock slow" G to reduce to C.

0·06 second,

The clock beats were transmitted automatically from the sidereal clock at Perth to the General Post Office, thence via Albany, Eucla, and Port Augusta to Adelaide. Repeaters were placed at the Perth General Post Office, Albany, Eucla, Yardea, Adelaide General Post Office, and Adelaide Observatory.

On 27th July and 2nd August an additional relay was introduced into the circuit at the Perth Observatory, the signals being transmitted thence to the chronograph through a local battery.

On each observing night two sets of beats, each lasting for a little over two minutes, were transmitted from each end, and registered on the chronographs at each Observatory. Of these some 50 or more were measured, and the arithmetical mean adopted. The signals came through very clearly, the extreme differences amongst the several measures in any one set amounting, at the outside, to only 0·05 second.

Clock errors were determined in the usual manner, adopting the positions of clock stars given in the British Nautical Almanac, the level and azimuth errors being determined on each night as accurately as possible from mercury reflections and circumpolars.

The details are given in the accompanying joint report, the resulting difference of longitude being 1 hour 30 minutes 58·56 seconds. Adopting for the longitude of Adelaide 9 hours 14 minutes 20·30 seconds, given in a "Report on the Telegraphic Determination of Australian Longitudes, 1886," this makes Perth 7 hours 43 minutes 21·74 seconds East of Greenwich.

Wave and Armature Time.—The mean result for this quantity, from the five nights observations, is—

0·27 second.

An interesting experiment was carried out with the co-operation of the Superintendent of Telegraphs. The circuit from the sidereal clock passes directly through the coils of a multiple relay, whence six simultaneous sets of clock beats issue. One of these goes to the chronograph through a local battery, another was sent along the line to the G.P.O., thence via Albany to Eucla, and back again to the Observatory chronograph via Coolgardie. This circuit corresponds approximately in distance to the line over which the clock beats were sent to Adelaide, and the same number of repeaters were used. The two sets of beats, one direct from the multiple relay and the other via Eucla, were recorded clearly on the chronograph, and the mean difference amounted to agreeing almost identically with that obtained between here and Adelaide.

0·26 second,

L A T I T U D E .

The latitude was obtained from meridian zenith distances of circumpolars. A working list was prepared, which included some stars having their upper and some their lower transit between 5 and 7 p.m. As many of these as circumstances would permit were observed in the evening and the same set was taken on the following morning. The zenith distances were corrected for refraction by Bessel's refraction tables, as published in the Greenwich Observations, 1853. They have not been corrected for flexure or errors of division. A few determinations of the horizontal flexure co-efficient have been made, the mean of which is to be added to zenith distances of South stars. This quantity would give an approximate correction to the latitude of—0·64".

The errors of division have not yet been determined. The transit room is built somewhat after the plan suggested by Dr. Gill, in Cape Catalogue, 1885, introduction page XLVIII., paragraph four. The roof was opened to leave an observing slit about six feet wide at least half-an-hour prior to the commencement of observations, and a nadir point determination was made both before and after each set, morning and evening. The following table gives the individual results from upper and lower transits of each star :—

HIS Excellency the Governor in Executive Council has been pleased to approve the following Amended By-Laws made by the Local Board of Health at Cookernup.

OCT. BURT,
Under Secretary.

Cookernup Local Board of Health.AMENDED BY-LAWS.

THE Cookernup Local Board of Health, under and by virtue of the powers and authorities conferred upon it by "The Health Act, 1898," and of all other powers and authorities enabling it in this behalf, doth hereby make and proclaim the following by-laws:—

1. In the construction and for the purposes of these by-laws, the following words, if not inconsistent with the context or subject matter, have the respective meanings hereby assigned to them, that is to say:—

"Cesspit" and "Cesspan" mean any receptacle for faecal matter.

"Closet" means the structure above or enclosing a cesspit or cesspan.

"House" has the meaning assigned to it by "The Health Act, 1898," and also means and includes huts, tents, and mills, or other buildings or premises.

"Water Area" means the catchment area of the water supply for any settlement.

"Occupier" means any person living in or being in the possession, use, or enjoyment of any house, whether paying rent for the same or not.

"Inspector" means an Inspector of Nuisances or Sanitary Inspector appointed by the Local Board of Health, and any Sub-Inspector appointed by the said Board.

"Refuse" means and includes any decomposing animal or decaying vegetable matter, house refuse, slops, soapsuds, sawdust, and ashes.

"High Water Mark" means the highest point on either bank of any water course to which the waters of such water course have risen, or may at any time rise.

2. The owner or occupier of every house shall, within one month after the publication of these by-laws, construct, or cause to be constructed, a closet and cess-pan for the use of the occupants of such house. Such closet and cess-pan shall be constructed in the position, mode, and manner hereinafter declared. Provided, however, that on the permission of the Inspector, one closet may be constructed and used for not more than four houses, and such permission may at any time be revoked.

3. Every closet shall be so constructed as to effectually screen the persons using the same from observation, and every cesspan shall consist of a portable bucket, which shall be emptied and cleansed once every week, or as much oftener as may be directed by the Inspector.

4. No closet shall be constructed within fifty feet of a house or within fifty yards of high water mark, and any closet situated within fifty feet of a house or fifty yards of high water mark shall, within one calendar month of notice to that effect being given to the owner or occupier by the Inspector, be taken down, and the cesspan cleansed and a fire made therein, after which the cesspit shall be filled up to the satisfaction of the Inspector by the owner or occupier of the house to which such closet or cesspit is appurtenant.

5. Any owner or occupier who permits a cesspan to overflow from any cause whatever shall be guilty of an offence.
