(b) The ullage plugs or sighting ports shall be closed immediately this work has been completed, but when frequent operations of this nature are in progress on particular tanks, the openings may be left open so long as they are adequately protected by sandbags or by strong non-corroding wire gauze or by other flameproof device approved by Lloyds Register of Shipping or other approved Classification Society, while the dipping or sampling operations are not actually being undertaken. The wire gauze shall be kept clean and free from obstruction and shall be of mesh not less than 28 to the linear inch and of gauge not less than 28 S.W.G.

(11) Whilst any oil classified as of Group "A" or of Group "B" is being transferred between the vessel and the Refinery, or whilst ballasting gas-freeing or tank cleaning of the vessel is being undertaken, all doors and port-holes of the vessel's after-house facing on to the oil tank deck and the door leading to the centre-castle accommodation shall be kept securely closed and all after-house ventilators shall be turned to face aft during these operations.

(12) Prior to commencing the transference of oil between the vessel and the Refinery, the maximum pressure and rate of transference shall be agreed with the appropriate Refinery representative, having regard to the grade of oil to be transferred and the size and capacity of the vessel's oil lines and gas venting system.

(13) (a) Under no circumstances shall any person attempt to reduce the rate of loading from the Refinery by closing any vessel's valves and where tanks are being topped off, loading rates may be reduced only by means of pumps or control valves at the Refinery installation.

(b) Particular care shall be taken that during a change-over from one tank to another, the valves to an empty tank are opened well before the valves of the tank being finished are shut down.

(14) Where air or water is used to clear any pipeline on completion of unloading of oil from the vessel, a low pumping speed shall be maintained to eliminate danger from static electricity.

(15) During severe electrical storms, transference of oil classified as of Group "A" shall be suspended by the responsible officer of the vessel, or by the appropriate Refinery representative, and all valve and tank openings shall be closed until the storm has passed.

(16) Before any oil classified as of Group "A" or of Group "B" is transferred all awnings and sun-screens extending over and on to the cargo deck of the vessel shall be furled and shall remain furled until all operations including loading, unloading, or ballasting have been completed.

(17) (a) Under no circumstances shall any oil classified as of Group "A" or of Group "B" be loaded or transferred overall, i.e., loaded direct into a tank of the vessel through a hose with the tank lid open.

(b) Under special circumstances and with the written approval of the Harbour Master, oil classified as of Group "C" may be loaded or transferred overall, in which case the following special safety precautions shall be observed:—

(i) The hose shall be lashed inside the tank coaming and a bond wire shall be connected between the vessel and the jetty pipelines.

(ii) In addition to the bond wire above referred to, a further earthing wire with a metal disc at its end shall be connected to the flange of the hose inserted in the tank and lowered to the tank bottom.

(18) All precautions laid down in this Regulation relating to the transference of oil classified as of Group "A" or of Group "B" shall equally apply to a vessel loading oil classified as of Group "C" if any tank of the vessel has previously contained oil classified as of Group "A" or of Group "B" and has not been rendered gas-free.

(19) (a) No craft other than tugs assisting in an emergency shall proceed alongside or remain alongside the vessel while engaging in transference of oil classified as of Group "A" or whilst ballasting or gas-freeing of tanks is in progress.

(b) Under all other circumstances, tugs, barges, water lighters, oil bunker lighters and other craft shall obtain the permission of the Harbour Master to lie alongside the vessel whilst it is transferring oil, which craft shall be fully manned whilst alongside and fully equipped with efficient fire fighting appliances.

Oil Spillage and Leakage.

(20) Before transference of any oil from the Refinery to the vessel is commenced, all scupper holes on the vessel shall be blocked and sealed in such a manner as shall make them oil tight. If a spillage of oil should occur, the oil shall be disposed of by mopping up or by some other method approved of by the Harbour Master. Under no circumstances shall oil be washed or swept overboard.

(21) All pipes, valves, connections and fittings of whatever kind used for the transference of oil shall be kept free from leakages and drip trays shall always be used where pipeline connections are broken.

General Fire and Safety Regulations.

(22) Upon an outbreak of fire in the vessel an immediate signal shall be made by all or any of the following means available in the vessel—a rapid and continuous ringing of the fire bell, pressing of electric alarm bells, or prolonged sounding of the whistle or siren.

(23) (a) Except as is hereinafter provided the use of naked lights is prohibited on board the vessel at all times. The term "naked light" includes all open flames, fires, exposed incandescent material, lamps of unapproved pattern, electric welding arcs, welding and cutting torches, rivet fires, blow lamps, primus stoves, portable electrically operated tools and hand tools liable to cause sparking.

(b) Lamps, electric or otherwise, not being of a standard approved by a recognised Vessels' Classification Society or by the Harbour Master as the case may be, shall not be used and under no circumstances shall wandering leads be permitted.

(24) Boiler cleaning, chipping, scaling or scraping of steelwork or other work likely to cause sparks shall not be undertaken on the vessel and iron or steel hammers or other instruments capable of causing sparks shall not be used for the opening of hatches. Where any urgent repair work is required to be carried out on the vessel before it can depart, the work being additional to that referred to in paragraph (4) of this Regulation, the written permission of the Harbour Master shall be obtained before the additional work is commenced.

(25) Prior to the transference of oil all fire fighting appliances aboard the vessel shall be examined by a responsible officer of the vessel to ensure that they are ready for immediate use. Fire hoses with nozzles attached shall be uncoiled and connected to the deck service line on the fore and aft cargo deck of the vessel and at least one fire pump capable of a high water pressure supply shall be readily available.

(26) In addition to the supervision and control which shall be exercised on the vessel, as specified in paragraph (6) of this Regulation, an engineer of the vessel shall be on duty in the engine room or boiler room or both at all times whilst the vessel is in the restricted area.

(27) At all times whilst the vessel is in the restricted area emergency towing wires shall be provided and shall be of sufficient length to reach the water's edge, with an eye being provided at the outboard end and with the inboard end made fast to bollards on the off-shore bow and quarter of the vessel.

(28) Boiler fires on the vessel may be kept alight irrespective of the grade of oil being transferred between the vessel and the Refinery. During the transference of oil classified as of Group "A" or of Group "B" and during gas-freeing or ballasting operations, all boiler room doors opening on to the poop deck of the vessel shall be kept securely closed and the boiler fires kept under constant supervision.

(29) Galley fires shall be extinguished and electric galleys shall be closed down on the vessel under the following conditions:—

- (a) During the loading of oil classified as of Group "A" or of Group "B", from the time connection with the shore hoses is commenced until such time as all hoses have been disconnected, deck lines blanked off and all deck openings securely closed.
- (b) During the unloading of any oil classified as of Group "A" or of Group "B" through the stern discharge line, from the time connection with the shore hoses is commenced until such time as all hoses have been disconnected and deck and shore lines blanked off.
- (c) During draining, ballasting, or gas-freeing operations, following the completion of unloading of oil classified as of Group "A" or of Group "B".
- (d) During the loading or unloading of packed oil cargo (Group "A" or Group "B") unless the galley is situated at a distance of more than 300 feet from the forehold or compartment being loaded or unloaded and from any conveyors, trucks, barges, wagons or other means of conveyance which are in use for the conveyance of the packed oils to or from the vessel, and provided that in the opinion of the Harbour Master the use of the vessel's galley is entirely safe having regard to prevailing weather conditions.

(30) Articles of an inflammable or combustible nature shall not be melted, heated, or permitted to accumulate on the deck of the vessel and inflammable or explosive stores of the vessel shall be kept in a safe place securely fastened.

Smoking and Use of Matches or Lighters.

(31) Smoking is strictly prohibited on the vessel under the following conditions:—

- (a) During the transference of any oil and during draining, ballasting or gas-freeing operations, except as provided by paragraph (32) of this Regulation. This prohibition shall apply from the time the tanks are first opened or the operation of connecting shore hoses commences, until such time as all hoses have been disconnected, deck lines blanked off and all tank openings securely closed.
- (b) At any time in any oil tank, pump-room, cofferdam, centre-castle space and adjoining compartments fore-castle space (if not occupied by the crew) or on any open deck, irrespective of the grade of oil being carried by the vessel, or whether the vessel be gas-freed.

(32) Smoking may be permitted on board the vessel under the following conditions:—

- (a) In all living or recreational accommodation upon the vessel during the transference of oil classified as of Group "C", and provided the vessel is gas-free, whilst ballasting.
- (b) During the unloading of oil classified as of Group "A" or of Group "B" from the amidships discharge connection (except when draining or ballasting) and only within accommodation specially selected by the master at the after end of the vessel.
- (c) During the loading or unloading of packed oils (Group "A" or Group "B") but only inside accommodation specially selected by the master at the after end of the vessel.

(33) (a) The selected smoking accommodation referred to in paragraph (32) of this Regulation shall be situated as far aft of the vessel as is possible and shall be limited to a minimum number of rooms so that a careful control and supervision of smoking may be exercised. The accommodation shall not include any rooms having doors or portholes facing forward on the poop front and the accommodation selected by the master shall not include the sleeping cabins of the crew.

(b) In all selected smoking accommodation, sizable containers, preferably filled with sand for use as ash trays, shall be provided.

(34) Warning notices specifying the conditions where and when smoking is prohibited or may be permitted shall be exhibited in conspicuous places on the vessel and the selected smoking accommodation clearly indicated in the notices. The possession and use of other than approved safety matches on the vessel is prohibited at all times.

(35) (a) Flint lighters of any description shall not be brought aboard the vessel by any person unless he is a member of the vessel's crew.

(b) Flint lighters possessed by members of the vessel's crew shall be left in the selected smoking room accommodation and shall not be carried on the person of any member of the crew whilst he is working on or about the vessel.

(c) Special precautions shall be taken to ensure that under no circumstances shall any person having matches or flint lighters in his possession enter any oil tank, general cargo hold, cofferdam, or pump room of the vessel.

General Cargo, Packed Oils and Passengers.

(36) The loading or unloading of miscellaneous general cargo, packed oils, ship's stores, luggage, or other articles, involving the use of mechanical lifting gear is prohibited while oil classified as of Group "A" is being transferred between the vessel and the Refinery, and also whilst ballasting or gas-freeing operations are being undertaken on the vessel, but light articles may be carried by hand upon obtaining the permission of the Harbour Master.

(37) The loading or unloading into or from the vessel of miscellaneous general cargo, packed oils, luggage, or other articles involving the use of mechanical lifting gear may be permitted whilst oil classified as of Group "B" or of Group "C" is being transferred between the vessel and the Refinery, but only at the discretion of the Harbour Master.

(38) All precautions required by this Regulation to be taken with the loading or unloading of oil in bulk shall also be taken with the loading or unloading of packed oils with such further precautions as under:—

- (a) Slings shall be by approved methods using only rope slings and non-ferrous drum hooks suitably mounted on rope slings.
- (b) The hatch coamings and any steel ladders, deck, or stanchions within the vessel's hold shall be adequately protected by mats or other suitable covering.
- (c) Packed oils classified as of Group "A" or of Group "B" shall not be loaded or unloaded, brought alongside or lie alongside the vessel during hours of darkness.
- (d) Soldering of leaking tins containing or having contained oil is prohibited on the vessel.

(39) Passengers shall not be embarked upon or disembarked from the vessel during the loading or unloading of oil classified as of Group "A" or of Group "B", nor during ballasting operations.

Access to Vessels and Notice Boards.

(40) Only one means of access to the vessel shall be permitted and for that purpose a gangway of approved pattern shall be provided. A reliable watchman, who shall be equipped with a whistle in order to attract attention where circumstances require it, shall also be provided. The watchman shall be stationed by day and night on the vessel at or within such distance from the gangway as will enable him to prevent unauthorised persons boarding the vessel and to ensure that no person smokes or is carrying matches, lighters, or other appliances likely to start a fire. During the hours of darkness the gangway shall be adequately lighted.

(41) Where an intoxicated member of the crew boards the vessel, the circumstances shall be reported immediately by the watchman to the Duty Officer of the vessel, who shall personally ensure that all practical steps are taken with respect to the crew member in order to protect the safety of the vessel against fire, explosion or accident.

(42) (a) Notice boards shall be displayed in a prominent position near the vessel's gangway and shall contain the following warnings:—

"NO ADMITTANCE EXCEPT ON BUSINESS"

"SMOKING STRICTLY PROHIBITED"

- (b) Such other notices as may be required by the Harbour Master shall also be displayed on the vessel.

Notice of the Conveyance, Loading or Unloading of Oil.

(43) The master, owner, or agent of the vessel shall give at least 24 hours' notice on the form provided to the Harbour Master in respect of the conveyance, loading or unloading of oil.
