SCHEDULE 1

[Regulation 56]

PROCEDURES FOR THE DETERMINATION OF LOG TIMBER QUANTITY

PART A — DETERMINATION OF VOLUME OF HARDWOOD LOG
TIMBER BY INDIVIDUAL LOG MEASUREMENT

For the purpose of determining the volume of hardwood log timber by individual log measurement the following provisions shall be complied with —

Length measurement

1. The length of butt logs shall be measured with a length measuring tape from the top of the sloven to the sawcut at the crown end of the log and the length of other logs shall be measured from sawcut to sawcut.

The measurement shall be entered on the log delivery note in metres and tenths of metres, rounded down to the nearest tenth metre.

Examples:

Actual log length Metres	Entry on log delivery note Metres
13.249	13.2
7.346	7.3
6.999	6.9
7.000	7.0

Diameter measurement

2. In this schedule, a “diameter tape” means a tape calibrated to record the diameter of the circumference being measured.

The diameter of logs shall be measured with a diameter tape at a point equi-distant from the top of the sloven and —

- (a) the crown end in the case of butt logs; and
- (b) a point equi-distant from both ends, i.e. the centre diameter in the case of other logs.

10 mm may be deducted from the actual measurement for each 100 mm diameter of bark under the tape, but no such allowance shall exceed 70 mm.

All diameter measurements shall be entered on the log delivery note in multiples of 10 mm and for this purpose any part of 10 mm shall be counted as 10 mm.

*Examples:All measurements in mm

Measured diameter overbark	Diameter overbark rounded up	mm of bark on	Bark deduction	Entry on log delivery note (underbark)
565	570	500	50	520
995	1 000	900	70	930
1 090	1 090	1 000	70	1 020
1 090	1 090	300	30	1 060
1 081	1 090	500	50	1 040

On logs with abnormal swellings at the centre, the centre diameter shall be ascertained by taking the average of the underbark diameters at an equal distance from the centre of the log sufficient to clear the abnormality, but both measurements and the centre underbark diameter so calculated shall be entered on the log delivery note.

Calculation of volume

3. Using the length and diameter measurements that have been entered in the log delivery note under clauses 1 and 2, the volume of the log timber (in cubic metres) shall be calculated by use of the table contained in the publication titled "Cubic Contents of Hardwood Logs 1985" issued by the Department (in this Part referred to as "the Log Volume Table").

The volume shall then be entered on the log delivery note.

Measurement of logs halved along their length

4. In order to obtain and record the volume of logs halved along their length —
  - (a) the length of the log shall be determined in accordance with clause 1;
  - (b) using the reverse side of the diameter tape (or the tape used to measure the length) the actual diameter under bark shall be measured across the exposed surface at the log length centre;
  - (c) the length and diameter measurements obtained in (a) and (b) shall be entered on the log delivery note;
  - (d) using the measurements entered on the log delivery note the Log Volume Table shall be used to calculate the volume underbark;
  - (e) the volume calculated under paragraph (d) shall then be halved and entered in the log delivery note and the words "half log" shall be written opposite the volume entry in the column headed "Where obtained".

PART B — DETERMINATION OF VOLUME OF SOFTWOOD LOG
TIMBER BY INDIVIDUAL LOG MEASUREMENT

For the purpose of determining the volume of softwood log timber by individual log measurement the following provisions shall be complied with —

Length measurement

1. The length of butt logs shall be measured with a length measuring tape from the top of the sloven to the sawcut and the length of other logs shall be measured from sawcut to sawcut. The measurement shall be entered on the log delivery note in metres and tenths of metres rounded down to the nearest "preferred length".

"A preferred length" for softwood is one of a series of industry accepted lengths beginning at 1.8 m and increasing by increments of 0.3 m up to 6.0 m.

If a log is to be supplied at other than a "preferred length" the actual length shall be rounded down to the nearest tenth of a metre.

Examples:

Actual length	Entry on Log Delivery Note
	To nearest tenth metre	To preferred length
3.80 m	3.8 m	3.6 m
4.11 m	4.1 m	3.9 m
4.75 m	4.7 m	4.5 m
4.99 m	4.9 m	4.8 m

Diameter measurement

2. The diameter of logs shall be measured with a diameter rule prepared and supplied by the Department. The diameter rule is calibrated in diameter classes of 50 mm. The diameter shall be measured under bark at the crown (small) end and rounded down to the nearest 50 mm class. When the cross section at the crown end is not circular, the average of the measurement along the greatest axis and the axis at right angles shall be recorded. The measurement shall be recorded on the log delivery note in millimetres rounded down to the nearest multiple of 50 mm.

51

Examples:

Actual Diameter (mm)	Entry on the Log Delivery Note (50 mm log class) (mm)
440	400
465	450
331	300
499	450

Calculation of volume

3. The volume of the log timber (in cubic metres) is calculated by the Department by use of log volume tables, using the length and diameter measurements entered on the log delivery note under clauses 1 and 2.

PART C — DETERMINATION OF QUANTITY OF LOG TIMBER BY WEIGHING

For the purpose of determining the quantity of log timber by weighing the following provisions shall be complied with —

Equipment

1. Weighing of log timber shall only be carried out on a weighbridge or other weighing equipment that has been approved for that purpose by the Executive Director.

Printer requirements

2. A weighbridge shall only be used for weighing log timber if the weighbridge is fitted with a printer that is capable of printing on the log delivery note, or on a weighbridge ticket that can be attached to the log delivery note, the following information —
  - (a) the time and date of weighing;
  - (b) the place of weighing i.e. details of the weighbridge used;
  - (c) the weight of the log timber to the nearest 0.1 tonne; and
  - (d) whether the weight is the gross weight or the tare weight.

Weighing procedure at an “on site” weighbridge

3. Where weighing of log timber is to be carried out on a weighbridge at the sawmill where the timber is to be processed —
  - (a) the gross weight of the load shall be determined immediately before the log timber is unloaded;
  - (b) the tare weight of the vehicle shall be determined immediately after the log timber is unloaded;
  - (c) the net weight of the log timber shall be ascertained by deducting the tare weight from the gross weight of the load;
  - (d) the gross, net and tare weights shall be printed on the log delivery note or, in the case of a weighbridge ticket, attached to the log delivery note immediately after each weighing however if the weighbridge is fitted with a memory, the gross, net and tare weights may be printed (or attached) immediately after the final weighing.

Weighing procedure at an “off site” weighbridge

4. Where weighing of log timber is to be carried out on a weighbridge that is not situated at the sawmill where the timber is to be processed —
  - (a) the gross weight of the load shall be determined as soon as is practicable before unloading;

53

- (b) after the gross weight of the load has been determined, the vehicle shall proceed directly to the sawmill by the shortest practical route;
- (c) after the log timber is unloaded, the vehicle shall immediately proceed by the shortest practical route to the weighbridge where the tare weight of the vehicle shall be determined;
- (d) except in the event of an emergency, no fuel, oil, stores or persons shall be collected, and no change of equipment shall be made, between unloading the log timber and reweighing the vehicle at the weighbridge to determine the tare weight;
- (e) where approval is given by the Executive Director a method other than weighing at a weighbridge may be used to determine the tare weight of a vehicle;
- (f) the net weight of a load shall be determined by deducting the tare weight of the vehicle from the gross weight of the load;
- (g) the gross, net and tare weights shall be printed on the log delivery note or, in the case of a weighbridge ticket, attached to the log delivery note immediately after each weighing however if the weighbridge is fitted with a memory, the gross, net and tare weights may be printed (or attached) immediately after the final weighing.

Procedure on breakdown of weighing equipment

- 5.1 Where weighing equipment that has been approved by the Executive Director for the weighing of log timber breaks down, the manager of the sawmill at which the weighbridge is located shall immediately notify the forest officer in charge of the district in which the sawmill is located of the breakdown.
- 5.2 In the event of a breakdown referred to in clause 5.1, the Executive Director may authorize —
  - (a) use of alternative weighing equipment;
  - (b) the determination of the net weight of a load based upon the average net weight of loads for the relevant vehicle over the previous period of 2 months;
  - (c) determination of the volume of the log timber by bin measure under Part D; or
  - (d) determination of the volume of the log timber by individual measurement under Part A or B.
- 5.3 In the event of a breakdown, the quantity of log timber shall be determined by use of the alternative method approved under clause 5.2 until the weighing equipment is repaired.

Procedure where vehicle and trailer cannot be weighed together

6. Where a vehicle and a trailer carrying log timber cannot be weighed together on a weighbridge, then the vehicle and the trailer —
  - (a) shall be weighed separately; and
  - (b) shall be the subject of separate log delivery notes.

PART D — DETERMINATION OF VOLUME OF LOG TIMBER BY BIN MEASURE

For the purpose of determining the volume of log timber by bin measurement the following provisions shall be complied with —

Length of timber

1. All log timber in a bin shall be trimmed to the same length. The length of the logs shall then be measured and the length measurement entered on the log delivery note.

Height of load

2. Log timber in a bin shall be trimmed so that the top of the load is as level as possible.

The height of the load shall be measured from the top of the bolsters on the bed of the vehicle to the top of the load using an official measuring stick issued by the Department that is graduated in increments of 100 mm.

The height of the load shall be measured at 2 of the stanchions and at the centre of the log length. The three height measurements shall then be averaged and the average height measurement shall be entered in the log delivery note.

Width of load

3. The width of a load shall be measured between the stanchions on each side of the bin and shall be the minimum width between those stanchions. The width of the load shall then be entered in the log delivery note.

Stacking of timber

4. Logs in a bin must be stacked uniformly and so that no logs are crossed.

Miscellaneous

5. The stanchions in a bin shall be vertical. All measurements must be made while the load binder chains are secured.

All measurements shall be made by a representative of the buyer and the driver of the vehicle.

Calculation of volume

6. The Department will calculate the volume of the bin using the length, height and width measurements entered on the log delivery note under clauses 1, 2 and 3.

The volume of log timber in a load is calculated by the Department by use of tables of conversion factors which take into account air space volume and log bark volume in the bin.

PART E — DETERMINATION OF VOLUME OF LOG TIMBER
BY INFRA RED LOG SCANNER

For the purpose of determining the volume of log timber by infra red log scanner the following provisions shall be complied with —

Interpretation

1. In this Part —

“log scanner” means a computerised instrument designed —

- (a) to measure the diameter and length of a log when a log is passed through a scanning frame which emits and receives infra red light; and
- (b) to produce signals which correspond to measurements made during scanning with infra red light which can be interpreted and processed by a scanner computer;

“scanner computer” means a computer operating a computer programme and connected to a log scanner for the purpose of —

- (a) receiving measurement signals from the scanner;
- (b) interpreting and processing —
  - (i) measurement signals received from the scanner; and
  - (ii) information received through an input device for documents, a keyboard, or a bar code reader, and producing reports based on that information.

Equipment to be approved by the Executive Director

2. A log scanner, scanner computer or computer programme shall not be used to determine the volume of log timber unless the log scanner, scanner computer or computer programme has been approved by the Executive Director.

Verification before each shift

3. A log scanner and scanner computer shall not be used to determine the volume of log timber unless, immediately before the commencement of each shift, a measurement verification test has been carried out on the log scanner and scanner computer in accordance with clause 5 and the scanner complies with the verification tolerance limits set out in clause 7 for the measurement of log diameter and length.

Verification after interruption

4. A log scanner and scanner computer shall not be used to determine the volume of log timber after the log scanner operation or scanner computer operation has been interrupted by —
- (a) maintenance or adjustment of the log scanner;

57

- (b) a malfunction of the scanner computer; or
- (c) a power failure,

unless, immediately before recommencing, a measurement verification test has been carried out on the scanner and computer in accordance with clause 5 and the scanner and computer comply with the verification tolerance limits set out in clause 7 for the measurement of log diameter and length.

Measurement verification test

5. A measurement verification test to test the accuracy of the measurements made by a log scanner and scanner computer shall be carried out in the following manner —
- (a) by passing a test object or test objects that have been approved under clause 6 through the scanning frame of the log scanner at least 5 times so that a minimum of 5 diameter and 5 length measurements are made;
  - (b) by obtaining each measurement of the approved test object or objects from the scanner computer; and
  - (c) by verifying the measurements obtained from the scanner computer against the measurement of the test object determined by the forest officer under clause 6.

Approval of test object

6. A test object shall not be used for a measurement verification test referred to in clause 5 unless —
- (a) a forest officer has approved the use of the test object and the diameter and length measurements of the test object have been manually determined and recorded by the forest officer; and
  - (b) the test object has not been damaged since its approval for use under paragraph (a) and the approval for the use of that test object has not been withdrawn by a forest officer.

Verification tolerance limits

7. The measurements obtained from a log scanner and scanner computer under a measurement verification test under clause 5 must not in any case vary —
- (a) in respect of a diameter measurement, by more than 10 mm or less than 10 mm from the diameter of the test object recorded by the forest officer under clause 6; and
  - (b) in respect of a length measurement, by more than 25 mm or less than 25 mm from the length of the test object recorded by the forest officer under clause 6.

Procedure where verification tolerance limits not met

8. Where a measurement verification test is carried out on a log scanner and scanner computer in accordance with clause 5 and the scanner and computer fail to comply with the verification tolerance limits set out in clause 7 —
- (a) the log scanner operation shall cease and shall not recommence until such time as the scanner has been fixed so that the log scanner and scanner computer comply with the verification tolerance limits set out in clause 7; and
  - (b) determination of log timber quantity shall be carried out under clause 15 as if a log scanner or scanner computer breakdown has occurred.

Processing of log timber

9. A log scanner shall not be used to determine the quantity of any log timber unless —
- (a) the quantity of the log timber is determined on the day on which the log timber is received; and
  - (b) any other log timber the subject of the same log delivery note is processed at the same time.

Procedure for marking and separation of load of log timber on intake deck

10. All loads of log timber placed on the intake deck of a log scanner shall —
- (a) be marked with the relevant log delivery note number; and
  - (b) be separated from other loads of log timber by a clear gap on the intake deck.

Procedure for sorting a load of log timber

11. Where a load of log timber has been delivered to a sawmill for determination of the quantity of that timber by log scanner and the load contains logs that are too large or have too many defects to be processed in their delivered form through a debarking machine or the frame of a log scanner, the logs shall —
- (a) be placed in an area set aside for oversized or defective logs;
  - (b) be recorded on the relevant log delivery note as a reject log immediately after the remainder of the load has been processed through the log scanner.

Procedure where load of log timber at a temporary storage site not processed by log scanner

12. In the event that any log timber cannot be processed through a log scanner on the day on which the timber is received at the relevant sawmill, then the quantity of that timber shall be determined under clause 15 as if a log scanner or scanner computer breakdown had occurred.

Notification of breakdown of log scanner or scanner computer

13. In the event that a log scanner or scanner computer breaks down, the owner or manager of the relevant sawmill shall immediately notify the forest officer in charge of the district in which the sawmill is located of the breakdown.

Procedure where load of log timber received after breakdown of log scanner or scanner computer

14. In the event of a log scanner or scanner computer breaking down, the following procedures for determining log timber quantity of any load of log timber received after the breakdown shall apply until such time as the breakdown is repaired —
- (a) in the case of softwood log timber, the volume of log timber received shall be determined by bin measure under Part D; or
  - (b) in the case of hardwood log timber, the volume of log timber received shall be determined by individual log measurement under Part A.

Procedure where load of log timber received before breakdown of log scanner or scanner computer and not processed

15. In the event of a log scanner or scanner computer breakdown, the following procedures for determining the quantity of any load of log timber on the log scanner intake deck or held at a temporary storage site at the time of breakdown shall apply —
- (a) subject to paragraph (b), the log timber may be held unmeasured until such time as the breakdown is repaired;
  - (b) where repair to the breakdown cannot be completed in sufficient time for log timber on the scanner intake deck or held at a temporary storage site to be processed on the day the log timber was received at the sawmill, then —
    - (i) in the case of softwood log timber, the volume of log timber shall be determined by individual log measurement under Part B;
    - (ii) in the case of hardwood log timber, the volume of log timber shall be determined by individual log measurement under Part A.

60

Check on number of logs in a load

16. Where a load of log timber has been processed through a log scanner —
- (a) the number of logs recorded on the relevant log delivery note shall be compared with the number of logs determined by processing through a log scanner; and
  - (b) in the event that the number of logs determined by the log scanner is not the same as that originally entered in the log delivery note, a report explaining the discrepancy in log numbers shall be written on the relevant log delivery note.

Daily report of log delivery

17. All log deliveries received at a sawmill in one day shall be listed by log delivery note number in a daily report to the Executive Director produced by the scanner computer and for each log delivery note the report shall —
- (a) list the total number of logs that have passed through the log scanner;
  - (b) provide individual log measurements including length, preferred-length, mid-diameter, volume and such other measurements as the Executive Director may require; and
  - (c) identify each log class measured and the total volume of timber processed in each log class and provide the total volume of log timber received and processed in all log classes.

Arrangement of daily report

18. The listing of each log delivery note number and the information required under clause 17 in a daily report to the Executive Director shall be arranged in the sequential order in which the log timber was scanned by the log scanner and its volume determined by the scanner computer.
