By His Excellency's command,
R. R. MADDEN,
Colonial Secretary.

Downing Street, 20th November, 1847.

Sir,—My attention has lately been called by the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland to the fact, that the Prelates of the Roman Catholic Church in the British Colonies have not hitherto, in their official correspondence with the Governor and Authorities, been usually addressed by the Title to which their rank, in their own Church, would appear to give them a just claim. Formerly there were obvious reasons for this practice; but as Parliament has, by a recent Act, (that relating to charitable bequests in Ireland,) formally recognised the rank of the Irish Roman Catholic Prelates, by giving them precedence immediately after the Prelates of the Established Church of the same degree—the Roman Catholic Archbishops and Bishops taking rank immediately after the Protestant Archbishops and Bishops respectively; it has appeared to Her Majesty's Government that it is their duty to conform to the rule thus laid down by the Legislature, and I have accordingly to instruct you hereafter officially to address the Prelates of the Roman Catholic Church in your Government by the title of "Your Grace," or "Your Lordship," as the case may be.

Parliament not having thought proper to sanction the assumption by the Prelates of the Roman Catholic Church in Ireland of titles derived from the Sees which they hold, a similar rule will be followed in the Colonies:—thus, for example, the Roman Catholic Prelate in New South Wales will be addressed as the Most Reverend Archbishop Polding, and in Van Diemen's Land, as the Right Reverend Bishop Wilson.

I have the honor to be, Sir,
Your obedient Servant,

GREY.

Government of Western Australia.
