GEORGE SHENTON,
Colonial Secretary.

Report of H.M.S. "Penguin" for Season 1891.

PROGRESS OF MARINE SURVEY.

Sir,

"Penguin," Hong Kong, 31st December, 1891.

I have the honor to report to Your Excellency the progress of the Marine Survey for the year ending to-day.

2. In accordance with my general instructions, I left Hobart in Her Majesty's ship under my command, on 14th March, to dock at Williamstown. Melbourne was left on 26th March, Adelaide on the 31st March, and I arrived at Albany on the 5th of April.

The first surveying operation of the season was the exchange of signals between Adelaide Observatory and Albany Telegraph Office, on the 9th April, for the purpose of determining the exact longitude of Albany.

Owing to the careful arrangements which had been made by Mr. Charles Todd, C.M.G., F.R.S., and Mr. W. J. Hancock, the Superintendent of Telegraphs of Western Australia, the result was entirely satisfactory. This operation placed Albany 18" West of the position hitherto assigned to it. On 10th April the "Penguin" proceeded to Cape Leeuwin, the Colonial Defence Commission and Sir John Forrest having expressed a wish that I should select a site for a Lighthouse. After visiting three sites, viz., the Leeuwin itself, Cape Hamelin, and Cumberland Rock, I came to the conclusion that Cumberland Rock was incomparably the best position; and so reported to Your Excellency. On the 13th April the vessel proceeded on her voyage North, obtaining deep-sea soundings at intervals off the West Coast of Australia; and, on 21st, arrived off the island of Bezout, near Cossack.

3. Four days were spent in this locality, examining the area of magnetic disturbance reported last year. Briefly, the result of this examination was as follows:—

(1.) The limits were defined of an area four miles long, North-East and South-West, by two miles broad, with a depth of eight to nine fathoms of water over it, over which compasses are deflected one degree or more.

(2.) Within the above an area three miles long, North-East and South-West, by half-a-mile to $1\frac{1}{2}$ miles broad, over which compasses are disturbed five degrees or more.

(3.) Within the above:—

(a.) A line about $2\frac{1}{4}$ miles long, over which the North-seeking end of the needle is violently repelled to the East in several places as much as 40° , and in one place as much as 56° .

(b.) A line about $2\frac{1}{4}$ miles long, over which the North-seeking end of the needle is violently repelled to the West to about one-half the Easterly repulsion.

(c.) Between these two lines, which are from one to three cables apart, a line $2\frac{1}{4}$ miles long (nearly straight), called "The Axis," over which the needle points to the true North, and the directive force is very small.

(d.) A point on this last line, where the Intensity is greatest, which is called the "Focus."

A needle freely suspended in the neighborhood of the Focus dipped to $81^\circ 10'$, the North-seeking end of the needle being repelled upwards 31° .

The greatest Intensity found was 18.808 (British units), or about double that which is due in this locality to the earth considered as a magnet. The greatest range in deflection of the "Penguin's" compass card was 86° , and the greatest Easterly repulsion, viz., 56° , coincided with the angle which the axis makes with the True Meridian at the Focus.

4. The "Penguin's" examination corroborated the generally received principle of local magnetic attraction, that in the Southern Magnetic Hemisphere the North-seeking end of the needle is repelled from the object, while in the Northern it is attracted. There is no evidence, at present, that any danger accrues to navigation, except that a vessel steering by compass across the area of disturbance would be set out of her course more or less, according as to whether she cut across it at the narrowest part or obliquely.

5. Coal was taken in at Roebuck Bay, and on 1st May the "Penguin" proceeded to Baudin Island, sounding en route. The geographical position of Adèle Island was determined.

The tide pole was re-established at Baudin, and an armed party encamped to guard it, and watch the half-hourly movements of the water. These tidal observations were continued without interruption until 7th October.

6. From 5th May to 14th October the survey of the North-West Coast of Australia was pursued with one break, caused by a visit to Port Darwin to coal, provision, give leave to the crew, and receive a draft of men from Her Majesty's ship "Tauranga," to complete complement. Whilst at Port Darwin Mr. Percy W. Bassett-Smith, surgeon, joined. This officer, who has always been an indefatigable collector of specimens of natural history, was a valuable addition to the "Penguin's" staff. He undertook the collection and arrangement of the marine specimens; Mr. J. J. Walker, F.L.S., the Chief Engineer of the vessel, undertaking the arrangement of the land specimens. The collections of these two officers have been presented by the Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty to the British Museum; but some geological and deep-sea bottom specimens have been sent to the Government Geologist of Western Australia.

7. In September, a whale boat, under the command of the Executive Officer, Lieutenant J. W. Combe, was detached to survey the Montalivet, Maret, Prudhoe, and Bigge islands, and the "Penguin" paid a brief visit to Roebuck Bay, for coals. While returning to Baudin, the Baleine bank, which is situated in the fairway of vessels bound from Roebuck Bay to King's Sound, was defined, and an area West of it surveyed. Expedition island, placed on the existing chart from the report of the master of the barque "Tien Tsin," and represented to be 6 miles in length, 2 to 3 miles in breadth, 30 feet high, covered with bushes, and surrounded by an extensive reef, was proved to have no existence.

The "Penguin" anchored on the position assigned to the centre of the island, Latitude $15^{\circ} 34' S.$, Longitude $123^{\circ} 45' 40'' E.$, in 35 fathoms. No land or sand bank was seen from the top-gallant masthead at low water, neap tide.

8. Lieutenant Combe returned on the 30th September, having accomplished his survey in the face of many difficulties. Great precaution is necessary in landing on these islands, especially Bigge island, which is inhabited by a race of very hostile Aborigines, and I would urge Your Excellency to let this be known, if your Government proposes to execute any further surveying or prospecting operations in that locality; for Europeans landing in small parties, or without firearms, will probably meet with serious difficulties.

9. Early in October the reef hitherto supposed to exist in Latitude $13^{\circ} 35' S.$, Longitude $125^{\circ} 13' E.$ was searched for, and found not to exist.

10. The general result of the "Penguin's" survey of the reefs and channels around Cape Bougainville is somewhat disappointing, as regards prospects of successful navigation off that part of the coast of Western Australia.

During the two seasons we have been working there, thirty-eight thousand soundings have been obtained in depths between two and eighty fathoms. Many reefs placed on the charts by the old French explorers have been cleared away; but on the other hand, many new rocks and shoals have been discovered, which lie directly in the track of vessels bound from Port Darwin or Wyndham to Derby or Roebuck bay, both by the Inner and the Outer routes. The sea for 30 to 50 miles from the land is thickly impregnated with lime and mud, so that objects 3 feet below the surface are not visible. The "Penguin" has narrowly escaped stranding on hitherto unknown rocks, on at least three occasions, from this cause.

The range of tide is great, 20 to 25 feet. Notwithstanding the publication of a new chart, the locality must ever be navigated by large vessels with great caution.

11. This year, as Your Excellency is probably aware, the Pearl fishers broke ground in the neighborhood of Admiralty Gulf, Cape Bougainville, and the Holothuria Reefs. They appear to have enjoyed fair success.

12. In accordance with the tenour of my instructions, surveying operations on the North-West coast were discontinued on the 14th October, and the "Penguin" sounded to Port Darwin, where, after a short stay for the purpose of giving leave to the crew, coaling, provisioning, and cleaning the boilers, she sounded her way to China, to take up the work of Her Majesty's ship "Rambler" in the survey of the Chusan Archipelago.

13. The proceedings of the vessel after October have but an indirect interest for Your Excellency's Government. The "Penguin" left Port Darwin on the 28th October, and sounded out to the bank found by Captain Flinders on 19th March, 1803. Five days were devoted to the examination of this neighborhood, which resulted in the charting of four coral banks, with from 5 to 7 fathoms water over them, in the track of ships bound from Hong Kong to Port Darwin. The voyage was then continued, and a survey made of Koelewatte harbor; the geographical position of Damma island was determined; meridian distances measured to Amboina, Ternate, Samboangan, and Manila; the magnetic elements were obtained at the above places with a view of assessing the secular change since the visits of Her Majesty's ship "Challenger" in 1874. The "Penguin" arrived at Hong Kong on the 17th December.

14. I enclose a tracing showing the area surveyed in Western Australia during the present year; and I have the honor to be

Your Excellency's most obedient Servant,

W. USBORNE MOORE,

His Excellency the Governor of Western Australia.

Commander.

Appointments, how to be made.

1. All appointments shall be made to the lowest grade in each of the various branches of the Railway service for a period not exceeding three months in each case, and such appointments shall be on probation only.

On production of certificate of fitness, appointment may be confirmed by Commissioner.

2. After the expiration of the period of such probation, and upon the production of a certificate of fitness from the officer at the head of the branch in which such probationer was employed, and upon proof to the satisfaction of the Commissioner that all the provisions of these regulations have been complied with, such appointment may be confirmed by the Commissioner.

Age of Candidates.

3. Candidates for permanent employment must, except as hereinafter specified, be over 14 years of age and under 18. Their applications must be sent to the head of the department in which they desire employment. Applications to be accompanied by not less than three testimonials of character—one of which must be from last employer if candidate has been previously employed.

Examination of Candidates.

4. The candidate may be required to undergo such examination by a Board of Examiners as the Commissioner may from time to time prescribe for the class of service for which he may be a candidate, and the original testimonials must be produced for the information of such Examiners.

Medical Certificate.

5. It will be necessary that the candidate shall also produce, at such examination, a certificate from a registered medical practitioner of Western Australia that he is in sound bodily health and free from mental infirmity, and that his eyesight and hearing are perfect.

Board of Examiners.

Insurance.

7. It will be necessary that every probationer, before being permanently appointed, shall insure his life in accordance with regulations to be made by the Commissioner.

Appointments to be made in order of merit.

8. After all the conditions herein provided for are complied with, appointments will be made in the order of merit in which the candidates are certified by the Board of Examiners.

Commissioner may, in exceptional cases, appoint without examination.

10. Notwithstanding anything herein contained, the Commissioner shall have the power to appoint to any position or grade, if he thinks fit, and without the examination herein mentioned, any person of known ability or possessing special qualifications, not engaged in the Railway service.
