Should any lands remain unselected such will continue available until applied for or otherwise dealt with.

If a Land Board sitting becomes necessary, the applicants for the blocks will be duly notified of the date, time, and place of the meeting of the Board, and there shall be an interval of at least three days between the closing date and the sitting of the Board.

In order to provide for over-running, every lift shaft shall have at least three feet clearance between the top of cage yoke or bow, or any equalising bar or other structure which projects above the yoke or bow, and the underside of the ceiling or overhead joists, when the cage is at the top floor, and the same distance between the lowest part of the cage bottom and any projecting gear thereon, and the bottom of the shaft when the cage is at the lowest floor.

Over-run clearance. Provided that this regulation shall not be enforced in the case of lifts already installed before the proclamation of the Act, if the Inspector considers that sufficient space for ordinary safety requirements is provided.

9. Safety grip gear to the satisfaction of the Inspector is to be provided in the case of every suspended lift, except in the case of service or other small lifts in which it is impossible for any person to travel. The grip gear must be automatic and positive in its action, and must be able to hold the cage or platform securely in case the suspending ropes break or become detached. The grip gear must also be operable by the action of an adjustable speed governor, in case any undue acceleration occurs through overloading or in consequence of the failure of any part of the winding gear.

See Gazette, 16th Nov., 1923, p. 2221.

Provided that this regulation be not enforced in the case of lifts already installed before the commencement of the Act, at the discretion of the Inspector.

In the case of existing lifts erected before the proclamation of the said Act, the Inspector may exercise his discretion with regard to acceleration.

14. Emergency automatic switches must be fitted to all electric lifts, which will instantly cut off the current, and in the case of electrically operated brakes, apply the brake, should the cage over-run the floor level more than 12 inches at top or bottom. These switches must be operated by the car independently of the control gear, and must open the control circuit. Automatic limit switches.

15. Lifts shall be so constructed that they are incapable of travelling at a greater speed than 300 feet per minute when controlled by an attendant, and 200 feet per minute in the case of automatic lifts. Speed.

16. Every suspended lift should be provided with not less than two metallic lifting ropes. Each rope when new shall have a breaking stress of not less than five times the maximum load to which it will be subjected. If more than two ropes be used their total factor of safety should not be less than ten. Ropes.

Where only one rope is provided, as in the case of certain goods lifts installed before the proclamation of the Act, the factor of safety should not be less than ten. Balance weight ropes must be similarly proportioned to their load.

17. No cage or balance weight rope shall be installed until a certificate from the maker, or a copy thereof certified to by the user or his contractor, has been lodged at the office of the Chief Inspector. Such certificates should give the following information:— Wire rope certificates.

29. If there be more than one entrance to any cage, at least one entrance shall be supplied with a door fitted to the cage, and such door shall be equipped with electric contacts so arranged as to render control inoperative unless cage door is properly closed. Cage doors if more than one entrance.

30. The shaft doors may be either sliding or hinged, and preferably self-closing. If sliding doors are used, guides or runners must be fixed both at top and bottom of the doors and so arranged that the doors cannot be lifted off the runners. Shaft doors.

31. Collapsible gates will not be approved excepting as cage doors where it is not possible to fit sliding doors, owing to the large openings in them being a source of grave danger and owing to the difficulty of fitting efficient locking gear to them and keeping them in efficient order. Collapsible gates.

32. Electro-mechanical locking gear shall be fitted to all shaft doors. The locking gear shall be so arranged that it will automatically lock the doors when the cage is not more than 12 inches away from any floor, and should be of such description that the making and breaking of electric contact is positive, and that the control is rendered inoperative if any door be left open or improperly fastened. Electro-mechanical locks.

- Protecting locking gear. All locking gear and electric contacts must be of substantial construction, and must be protected as far as possible from outside interference, to the satisfaction of the Inspector.
- Width of opening and position of controls. 33. The width of the permanent opening of the cage should not exceed 30 inches, and the control switch or buttons should be placed in such a position that the lift attendant can efficiently control the ingress and egress of passengers.

- Push button control. The push button control of all automatic lifts shall be so arranged that:—
- Locks. (a) The lift cannot move until every shaft door is properly closed, and door locks shall be so designed that it is impossible to open them from the outside unless the cage is opposite.

- Stop button. (c) A special "stop" button in the cage shall be provided to enable the lift to be stopped anywhere.
- Dual control lifts. (d) Lifts not wholly automatic, i.e., lifts which are sometimes worked by an attendant, shall have an efficient switch cutting out the automatic control while attendant is in charge, and such switch shall be under the charge of the attendant or caretaker, and shall be locked or placed in such a position as to be inaccessible to the public.

All vertically sliding gates should close to within 1 inch of the floor. Collapsible gates will not be approved if it is possible to adopt any other type.

39. On cage entrance side the lift shaft shall have no projections, or if, as in the case of existing old buildings, the nature of the building is such that these cannot be avoided, the projections must be protected by bevelled screens or panels so as to minimise the risk of such projections catching persons or goods in the lift cage or on the platform.

Projections in shafts.

40. Any electric goods lift erected after the proclamation of "The Inspection of Machinery Act, 1921," shall have its shaft gates or doors fitted with electric contacts so designed that the cage cannot be moved unless all doors or gates be properly closed.

Electric door contacts.

In the case of lifts erected prior to the proclamation of the said Act, such contacts may be ordered by the Inspector wherever he considers them necessary.

41. When goods lifts are operated by pull ropes, whether from inside or outside the cage, such ropes must be fitted with stop buttons so arranged that, on the cage coming into contact with them at either limit, it is automatically stopped.

Cage control.

If operated by a hand lever control in the cage, the starting lever shall be so designed that it automatically flies back to neutral position and cuts off current if the attendant releases his grip of the lever.

If operated by push button system, a special stop button in the cage shall be provided to enable the attendant to stop cage anywhere.

42. Any lift used both as a passenger and goods lift shall be considered a passenger lift, as regards its equipment.

The name or names of such persons authorised to operate the lift shall be posted conspicuously in the cage.

46. No person other than an Inspector, or a workman engaged in erecting or repairing a lift, shall operate any lift from the control board, or in any manner other than by the proper means provided for the purpose, nor shall any person (except as above provided) at any time improperly interfere with any part of the lift mechanism or any enclosure, door, gate, or fastening, or attempt to work a lift in any manner other than the manner in which it was designed to work, except in case of an accident or extreme emergency.

Interference with lift mechanism.

47. In the case of automatic lifts, the owner shall cause the following notice to be exhibited at the lift shaft doors on each floor:—"Persons using this lift are cautioned to see that the cage is at this floor, and stationary, before attempting to open this door.”

Notice to be posted on automatic lifts.

HOISTS.

Hoists over thoroughfares.

51. Where a hoist is suspended outside a building over any thoroughfare, no load shall be slung on it unless there is a lorry or other vehicle below and ready to receive the load, or failing this, a person stationed in the thoroughfare to warn the public of the danger overhead.

52. Hoists are for the raising or lowering of goods and materials only and, under no circumstances, are to be used for raising or lowering any person.

MAINTENANCE OF LIFTS AND HOISTS.

53. The whole operating mechanism of any lift or hoist must be kept in a state of efficiency.

Any damaged doors, fastenings, or enclosures must be at once repaired.

All parts of the lift or hoist gear requiring lubrication must be properly oiled.

Lift shafts and all other parts in connection with any lift must be kept clean and free from accumulations of rubbish, dust, and dirt.

Alterations and renewals to be notified.

54. If any part of any lift or hoist, or any rope, whether lifting, balance, or controlling, should show signs of excessive wear or distortion, it must at once be renewed and the Chief Inspector notified accordingly.

Any person or firm who is responsible for the carrying out of lift repairs, and who makes any material alteration to mechanism or appliances used in connection with any lift, shall immediately notify the Chief Inspector in writing of any such alteration.

Six months to comply if erected before Act.

55. Where any of the above regulations affect any passenger or goods lift erected before the proclamation of the Act, six months shall be allowed to bring them into conformity with the regulations.
