40. Every vessel moored in any berth shall provide a safe and suitable gangway or accommodation ladder which shall constitute a safe means of ingress to and egress from the vessel, for the use of persons boarding or leaving the vessel.

PART VII.—OIL VESSELS.

53. In the following by-laws unless the context requires otherwise—

“oil vessel” means any vessel having on board or having lately had on board any flammable liquid as bulk cargo or part cargo.

“flammable liquid” means petroleum or any other liquid whatsoever, having a true flash point of less than 65° C at normal atmospheric pressure.

54. The master of an oil vessel shall, at all times that the vessel is nearing or is in a berth, display at the foremast head, or other conspicuous place clear of all obstructions so as to be clearly visible from any direction at least one mile from the vessel—

- (a) by day, the International code flag “B”; and
- (b) during the hours of darkness a red light so positioned as to be clear of all other lights on the vessel.

55. The master of an oil vessel having on board flammable liquids other than as deck cargo, and all other persons concerned, shall observe and perform the following provisions, namely—

- (1) after the vessel is made fast, all holds, tanks, and spaces containing flammable liquid shall be kept securely closed and fastened down, except when opened for the purpose of discharging;
- (2) an oil vessel with its cargo in bulk shall not be berthed until it is ready to load or discharge, and shall at all times continue and complete the loading or discharging with all possible despatch;
- (3) no hold, tank, or space containing flammable liquid in containers shall be opened until all trucks or other vehicles into which such goods are to be loaded are placed alongside the vessel and all is in readiness to commence the work;
- (4) after the vessel is made fast in a berth, vapours from all holds, tanks or spaces containing flammable liquid shall be properly vented to the atmosphere to the satisfaction of the Marine Superintendent and so that dangerous vapour concentrations do not occur;
- (5) an oil vessel loading or unloading flammable liquid in casks, barrels, or other receptacles or containers shall work its cargo or carry out any other work on board only as directed by the Marine Superintendent;
- (6) flammable liquid contained in casks, barrels or other receptacles shall not be landed on any wharf from a vessel unless the casks, barrels or other receptacles are staunch and free from leakage and are of such strength and construction as to be not liable to break or leak;
- (7) where the Marine Superintendent so approves in writing, flammable liquid in bulk may be unloaded after sunset into shore tanks, and may, in special circumstances, be loaded into tank ships, and the following conditions and such other conditions as the Marine Superintendent may in those circumstances impose, shall be complied with—

- (b) sufficient electric flood lighting of approved type shall be provided to give ample light for all operations;
- (8) general cargo, other than deck cargo, shall not be unloaded after sunset on any day from any oil vessel without the approval in writing of the Marine Superintendent.

56. The master of an oil vessel shall not permit or suffer any unauthorised person to be on board the vessel while loading or unloading of flammable liquid is in process, and shall display and keep displayed at the main gangway while occupying any berth at a wharf a conspicuous notice to the following effect—

NO ADMITTANCE

OIL SHIP

NO SMOKING ALLOWED

57. During the loading or unloading of flammable liquid no person shall smoke or heat any combustible matter, rivet, or chip iron, or clean boilers or boiler tubes, or carry out other work likely to cause ignition on board the oil vessel or any other vessel lying alongside, and no person engaged in that loading or unloading shall carry matches or other appliances for providing or capable of providing ignition.

58. (1) From the time when tanks of an oil vessel are opened for the purpose of discharging or loading flammable liquid in bulk, no person shall use or permit or suffer to be used on the vessel, any fire, other than approved ship's boilers, or light other than a safety lamp approved by the Marine Superintendent, either on board or within 30 metres of the oil vessel, without the authority of the Marine Superintendent.

(2) Fires, lights, or electric apparatus, other than electric filament lamps or self contained lamps, heaters, cookers, or other types of safe apparatus so designed, constructed and maintained as to be incapable of igniting flammable vapour, shall not be used on or near the wharf at which flammable liquid is being discharged or loaded, or upon which flammable liquid is lying.

59. (1) Before any pumping operations of flammable liquids are commenced, and during the continuance of those operations, the master shall cause—

- (a) a competent signalling staff to be in attendance both at the tank installation and on board the oil vessel; and
- (b) telephonic communication between the same points to be established and maintained.

(2) A responsible person shall be detailed by the master for attendance on the wharf to superintend the opening and closing of valves and for patrol of the pipeline during the whole of the pumping operation and pumping operations shall not be commenced before the correct position of all valves has been verified by the Marine Superintendent and the Marine Superintendent is satisfied that all precautions necessary have and will be taken to prevent leakages.

60. (1) While pumping is in progress the lids, screw caps, or other removable coverings of the tanks shall be kept securely fastened or screwed down, except so far as may be necessary to enable discharge of flammable liquid to proceed, and where it is necessary to remove any lid, screw cap, or other coverings, safety wire gauzes shall immediately be properly fitted, or other effective measures immediately taken, by the master to prevent the ignition of the flammable liquid or vapours.

(2) If any leakage occurs while flammable liquid is being loaded onto or discharged from an oil vessel, the master of the oil vessel shall forthwith cause the loading or discharging to cease.

61. Where permission has been granted by the Marine Superintendent for the pumping of flammable liquids into or out of an oil vessel to be carried out between sunset and sunrise, and an interruption or stoppage of loading or discharging takes place, the pumping shall not be recommenced until after sunrise, unless approved by the Marine Superintendent.

62. (1) When an oil vessel has completed discharging flammable liquid in bulk, the connection or connections to the shore pipeline shall not be broken until the pipeline for its whole length has been completely and satisfactorily cleared of all flammable liquid, and the Marine Superintendent approves the breaking of the pipeline.

(2) Immediately discharge of the flammable liquid is suspended or completed, all lids, screw caps, or other coverings shall be replaced, securely fastened down and made gas tight.

63. (1) The boiler or galley fires other than those required to produce steam for pumping of an oil vessel carrying flammable liquid in bulk shall not be alight from the time when the holds or tanks are first opened for the purpose of discharge unless the written authority of the Marine Superintendent is first obtained.

(2) The master shall not allow any furnace other than that required to produce steam for pumping or any galley or other fires to be alight on board an oil vessel while the running of water for ballast or other purposes into any tank receptacle, or enclosure on the oil vessel which has contained flammable liquids is being carried out.

(3) No ballasting shall be carried out unless all tanks are sealed down as required by the Marine Superintendent and the rate of ballasting any tank shall be reduced if required by the Marine Superintendent, and any directions given by him for other safety measures to be taken while ballasting shall be strictly observed.

(4) No ballasting shall be carried out by the master until he is so permitted by the Marine Superintendent, who shall lay down such further conditions under which ballasting may be carried out as he may in the circumstances consider necessary.

64. (1) All pipelines and connections thereto flexible or otherwise, used between the oil vessel and the berth, shall at all times be kept in an oil and vapour tight condition and shall not leak.

(2) Flammable liquid shall not be allowed to escape either directly or indirectly, into any waters.

65. The master of any oil vessel shall, immediately the vessel is berthed, have placed two steel wire hawsers one forward and one aft, and of sufficient strength to be used in towing the vessel away from the berth. The inboard ends of these wires shall be securely made fast on board and the outboard ends shall extend to the surface of the water, and they shall be placed as near as possible to the extremities of the oil vessel and so remain throughout the period the oil vessel is in berth.

66. The master of an oil vessel shall take all due precautions for the prevention of accidents by fire in the discharge of flammable liquids, and shall himself remain, or cause a responsible officer of the vessel to remain, on board the vessel, together with a sufficient crew, during the whole time the vessel is in berth.

67. The master of the oil vessel shall, when required so to do by the Marine Superintendent, do any act necessary to permit the Marine Superintendent to inspect and examine the flammable liquid on board the vessel and any appliances to be used on the vessel for the purpose of ascertaining whether the provisions of these regulations are being observed and whether all other measures necessary for general safety are being taken.

68. (1) The loading or unloading of flammable liquid into or from an oil vessel shall not be commenced unless—

(a) a barricade capable of preventing any unauthorised person having access to the vessel and pipe line hose connections has been erected on the wharf or jetty; and

(b) satisfactory provision has been made for watchmen to be in attendance to prevent the entrance of any unauthorised person and to take possession of matches from all persons passing through the barricade towards the oil vessel and to assist generally in the enforcement of these by-laws.

(2) The erection and maintenance of the barricade and the employment or engagement of watchmen shall be carried out and arranged by or in accordance with the directions of and to the satisfaction of the Marine Superintendent.

Form 3.

TOWAGE CONDITIONS.

Towage is undertaken only under the Towage Conditions printed hereunder and application for a tug or tugs is deemed to constitute acceptance of the conditions.

1. These towage conditions shall apply whilst the tug is engaged in towing operations, that is to say, commencing from the time when the tug is in a position to receive orders direct from the vessel to pick up ropes or lines, or when the tow rope has been passed to or by the tug, or when the tug is in a position to commence holding, pushing, pulling or moving the ship, or when the tug is in attendance upon or engaged on any manoeuvre for the purpose of rendering assistance to the vessel, whichever is the earliest, and ending when the final orders from the Master of the vessel to cast off ropes or lines have been carried out, or when the tow rope has been finally slipped, or when the tug has finally ceased holding, pushing, pulling or moving the vessel, or when the tug has ceased to attend upon or to be engaged on any manoeuvre for the purpose of rendering assistance to the vessel and when the tug is safely clear of the vessel, whichever is the latest.
2. It is hereby agreed that when a tug is engaged in towing or any other operations on behalf of a vessel:—
 - (1) The Master and crew of the tug shall be under the control of and identified with the Master of the vessel and his servants and agents and shall become the servants of the Master of the vessel. A person paid or employed by the Company shall also be considered the servant of the Master of the vessel. Provided that the Master of the tug shall not be under any obligation to carry out an order or direction of the Master of the vessel which in the opinion of the Master of the tug would endanger or be likely to endanger the safety of the tug or any member of the crew thereof.
 - (2) The Company shall not bear or be liable for, and the Master hereby undertakes to bear, pay for and indemnify the Company for damage of any description whatsoever done by or to the tug, or done by or to the vessel, or any loss of or damage to anything on board the vessel, or loss of the tug or the vessel, or any loss of or damage to any other property ashore or afloat, or any personal injury or loss of life, whatsoever may be the cause from which any of the foregoing may arise, including negligence at any time of the Company's servants or agents, unseaworthiness, unfitness or breakdown of tug, its machinery, boilers, towing gear, equipment or hawsers, lack of fuel, stores or speed.
 - (3) Provided that any such liability for loss or damage as set out above in paragraph (2) is not caused by want of reasonable care on the part of the Company to make its tug seaworthy, for the navigation of the tug when engaged in towing operation. The burden of proof of any failure to exercise such reasonable care being upon the vessel.
3. The vessel shall not bear or be liable for any loss or damage of any description done by or to the tug nor for loss of life or injury to the crew of the tug otherwise than whilst the tug is engaged in towing operations as hereinbefore defined. Nevertheless, nothing contained herein shall prejudice any claim the Company may have in Admiralty or at Common Law against the vessel or the master his servants or agents.
4. The Company may substitute one tug for another and may also employ tugs owned by other tug owners, and such other tug owners shall have the benefit of and be bound by these towage conditions.
5. The Company will not be responsible for the consequences of war, strikes, lockouts, riots, civil commotions, disputes or labour disturbances whether it be a party thereto or not, or for anything done in contemplation of furtherance thereof, or for delays of any description, however caused, including negligence of their servants or agents.
6. The time shall be calculated from the time the tug departs to carry out the service until the time the tug is berthed or moored or, if the tug does not return immediately to its berth or mooring, on the time at which it is estimated the tug could have berthed or moored if it had returned immediately after carrying out the service.

In these conditions where the context permits the word "Master" includes the owners of the vessel.

"Company" includes the owner of a tug where such tug is not owned by the Company.
