4. Calibration Methods for Noise Measurement Equipment and Audiometers.

Those methods adopted by approved laboratories, provided that a certificate is issued showing the results of that calibration, are approved methods for the purposes of the Regulations.

The certificate need not give individual details of calibration results, but sufficient information to identify the particular instrument calibrated and the results of that calibration in terms of the instrument satisfying (or otherwise) all the tests conducted.

The certificate shall show the clause numbers of the relevant standard to which the instrument has been calibrated.

Complete details of test results should be available if required. Where there is no relevant standard, either for a particular performance characteristic, or for a complete instrument performance, the laboratory shall perform such tests as are necessary to satisfy it that the instrument is operating within the standard of performance specified by the manufacturer. Details of these tests performed shall be made available if requested.

5. Laboratories for Testing Intrinsic Safety.

Those laboratories registered with the National Association of Testing Authorities for testing equipment or apparatus in accordance with Australian Standard 1829-1981 are approved laboratories for the purposes of regulation 7(a) of the Regulations.

6. Noise Measurement Equipment for Explosive or Flammable Atmospheres.

The following equipment is approved equipment for the purposes of regulation 7(b) of the Regulations subject to the specified conditions of use:

CEL-193/3 IS	—EEx ib IIA T4 category as defined in BS
(includes CEL-193/3 sound level meter and CEL-1978/3 octave filter)	5501

7. Marks, Notices and Signs.

Sign A4.4 of Australian Standard 1319-1983 is approved for use as a mark, sign or notice for the purposes of regulations 13 and 14 of the Regulations, provided it is presented and displayed in accordance with that standard.

8. Procedure for Assessment of Hearing Protection Devices.

The following procedures are approved for showing adequate attenuation of noise by hearing protection devices for the purposes of regulation 16 of the Regulations:

- (a) If it is practicable to conduct an octave band frequency analysis of the noise, and the sound pressure levels in the octave bands with centre frequencies 31.5 Hz, 63 Hz and 16 kHz do not contribute significantly to the overall noise level, that procedure in Australian Standard 1269-1983 Appendix C, Section C3.1, provided the standard attenuation measurements used for the device are the current results obtained by the National Acoustic Laboratories, Commonwealth Department of Health (N.A.L.).
- (b) If it is practicable to conduct an octave band frequency analysis of the noise and the sound pressure levels in the octave bands with centre frequencies, 31.5 Hz, 63 Hz or 16 kHz do contribute significantly to the overall noise level, a procedure extrapolated from that in (a), using for the corrected attenuation values of 31.5 Hz and 63 Hz the same value as calculated for 125 Hz and for 16 kHz the value calculated for 8 kHz.
- (c) If it is not practicable to conduct an octave band frequency analysis of the noise due to its short duration and infrequent occurrence, that procedure in Australian Standard 1269-1983 Appendix C, Section C3.2, provided that the SLC values used for the device are those obtained by NAL, and that the unweighted sound pressure level may be used instead of the C-weighted sound pressure level.
- (d) If in addition the peak noise level exceeds 140 dB (1in), the device shall have an SLC value, as determined by NAL of at least 29.0 dB.

If assessment by the appropriate procedure (a), (b) or (c) above shows that no available hearing protection device is capable of attenuating the noise at the ear to less than 90 dB (A), a combination of an earmuff and earplug having SLC values, as determined by NAL, of at least 29.0 and 20.0 dB respectively, shall be used.

9. Form of Audiogram.

The following forms of audiograms are approved for use for the purpose of regulation 23 of the Regulations:

- (a) a chart and the symbols similar to that given in Appendix C of Australian Standard 2586-1983, excepting that the range of hearing levels displayed may be altered to suit the range of the particular audiometer(s) in use;
- (b) a table showing the hearing threshold level, for the right and left ears separately; for each of the tested frequencies including 500 Hz, 1000 Hz, 2000 Hz, 3000 Hz, 4000 Hz and 6000 Hz;
- (c) a chart labelled as in (a), but with separate sections for the results of testing left and right ears (for use with automatic audiometers),

—provided they include information on the designated worker's or former designated worker's full name, date of birth and employer; the audiometer used (make, model, serial number); the date and time of the hearing test; the type of test (reference or monitoring); and the signature and approval number of the audiometric officer conducting the test.

10. Inspection of Audiograms.

The following persons are approved under regulation 23 (10) of the Noise Abatement (Hearing Conservation in Workplaces) Regulations 1983 for the purposes of the inspection of audiograms:

Andrea Mary Callagher	Frederick Heyworth
Karen Coulson	Kathleen Mary Howell
Jack Etherington	Laila Aune Mills
John Lindsay Finkelstein	Johny Constantino Tedesco
Reginald Griffiths	Kar Chan Wan
Pamela Ann Gunn	Peter Arnold Wilkins

11. Periods and Standards.

The following periods and standards are approved for the purposes of regulations 5 and 23 of the Regulations:

- (a) the period for noise surveys, where the person conducting the survey is not at the time approved as a noise officer, is the 24 months prior to the coming into operation of the Regulations or a period of 12 months from the date of completion of the first noise survey accepted under this provision, provided that in all other respects the noise survey is conducted and reported in accordance with the requirements of the Regulations;

- (b) the period for the calibration of sound measuring equipment, where the laboratory is not at the time approved for the purpose, is 24 months preceding each day of use of the equipment concerned, provided that in all other respects the calibration is conducted and reported in accordance with the requirements of the Regulations;
- (c) the period for the calibration of audiometers, where the laboratory is not at the time approved for the purpose, is 12 months preceding each day of use of the audiometer concerned in accordance with the requirements of the Regulations;
- (d) the period for reference audiometry, where the person conducting the audiometry is not at the time approved as an audiometric officer, is the 24 months prior to the coming into operation of the Regulations or a period of 12 months from the date of completion of the first reference audiogram accepted under this provision, provided that in all other respects the reference audiogram is conducted and reported in accordance with the requirements of the Regulations.
