Overview

One of the criteria that the Electoral Distribution Commissioners must consider in dividing the State into electoral regions and districts under the Electoral Distribution Act 1947 is the existing local government (municipality) boundaries. Indeed, a significant proportion of the electoral boundaries follow closely the boundaries described for the local governments, particularly in the country.

The preparation of the technical descriptions, which explain the boundaries of the new electoral regions and districts, is simplified by the use, where possible, of a reference to an existing municipality boundary rather than reproducing the detailed technical description for that boundary. This approach allows a significant reduction in the volume of the technical descriptions that would otherwise be required if all relevant local government boundaries were to be described in full.

As this method of description involves reference to source detail held elsewhere, a clear method of location and access to this reference material is required.

The technical descriptions for municipality boundaries are published in the Government Gazette and as such may be considered generally available. However, locating the specific issue and page of the Government Gazette which applies to a specific section or amendment of a municipality boundary is problematic. Typically, municipality boundaries are not redescribed in full in the Government Gazette whenever a change is made, but rather a description of the change is published. To ascertain the full technical description of a municipality may involve referencing a dozen or more issues of the Government Gazette going back more than a hundred years. The Department of Local Government and Regional Development holds a single master register of municipality boundary amendment entries dating back to 1856.

During the 1994 division of the State the three Electoral Distribution Commissioners decided that the most appropriate approach was to make the records held by the Department of Local Government and Regional Development more readily available as a public resource.

The Municipality Boundary Amendments Register was generated from combined information from both the Department of Land Information and the Department of Local Government and Regional Development and was published in special Government Gazette No. 167 on 28 November 1994 to coincide with the publication of the division of the State in special Government Gazette No. 168. The division of the State publication included an addendum with an abridged index taken from the Municipality Boundary

Amendments Register to assist in the location of particular references to municipalities.

The Municipality Boundary Amendments Register is maintained and updated by the Department of Local Government and Regional Development.

The Municipality Boundary Amendments Register is published in conjunction with divisions of the State. This second publication of the Municipality Boundary Amendments Register has been timed to coincide with the publication of the division of the State, published in special Government Gazette No. 133 on 4 August 2003. It includes details of local government boundary changes up to and including 31 May 2003.
