Schedule 1

[Regulation 56]

Procedures for the determination of log timber quantity

Part A — Determination of volume of hardwood log timber by individual log measurement

For the purpose of determining the volume of hardwood log timber by individual log measurement the following provisions shall be complied with —

1. Length measurement

The length of butt logs shall be measured with a length measuring tape from the top of the sloven to the sawcut at the crown end of the log and the length of other logs shall be measured from sawcut to sawcut.

The measurement shall be entered on the log delivery note in metres and tenths of metres, rounded down to the nearest tenth metre.

Examples:

Actual log length Metres	Entry on log delivery note Metres
13.249	13.2
7.346	7.3
6.999	6.9
7.000	7.0

2. Diameter measurement

In this schedule, a diameter tape means a tape calibrated to record the diameter of the circumference being measured.

The diameter of logs shall be measured with a diameter tape at a point equi-distant from the top of the sloven and —

- (a) the crown end in the case of butt logs; and

- (b) a point equi-distant from both ends, i.e. the centre diameter in the case of other logs.

10 mm may be deducted from the actual measurement for each 100 mm diameter of bark under the tape, but no such allowance shall exceed 70 mm.

All diameter measurements shall be entered on the log delivery note in multiples of 10 mm and for this purpose any part of 10 mm shall be counted as 10 mm.

Examples:

All measurements in mm

Measured diameter overbark	Diameter overbark rounded up	mm of bark on	Bark deduction	Entry on log delivery note (underbark)
565	570	500	50	520
995	1 000	900	70	930
1 090	1 090	1 000	70	1 020
1 090	1 090	300	30	1 060
1 081	1 090	500	50	1 040

On logs with abnormal swellings at the centre, the centre diameter shall be ascertained by taking the average of the underbark diameters at an equal distance from the centre of the log sufficient to clear the abnormality, but both measurements and the centre underbark diameter so calculated shall be entered on the log delivery note.

3. Volume, calculation of

Using the length and diameter measurements that have been entered in the log delivery note under clauses 1 and 2, the volume of the log timber (in cubic metres) shall be calculated by use of the table contained in the publication titled "Cubic Contents of Hardwood Logs 1985" issued by the Department (in this Part referred to as the Log Volume Table).

The volume shall then be entered on the log delivery note.

Forest Management Regulations 1993

Schedule 1 Procedures for the determination of log timber quantity

Part B Determination of volume of softwood log timber by individual log measurement

cl. 4

4. Logs halved along their length, measurement of

In order to obtain and record the volume of logs halved along their length —

- (a) the length of the log shall be determined in accordance with clause 1;
- (b) using the reverse side of the diameter tape (or the tape used to measure the length) the actual diameter underbark shall be measured across the exposed surface at the log length centre;
- (c) the length and diameter measurements obtained in (a) and (b) shall be entered on the log delivery note;
- (d) using the measurements entered on the log delivery note the Log Volume Table shall be used to calculate the volume underbark;
- (e) the volume calculated under paragraph (d) shall then be halved and entered in the log delivery note and the words “half log” shall be written opposite the volume entry in the column headed “Where obtained”.

Part B — Determination of volume of softwood log timber by individual log measurement

For the purpose of determining the volume of softwood log timber by individual log measurement the following provisions shall be complied with —

1. Length measurement

The length of butt logs shall be measured with a length measuring tape from the top of the sloven to the sawcut and the length of other logs shall be measured from sawcut to sawcut. The measurement shall be entered on the log delivery note in metres and tenths of metres rounded down to the nearest “preferred length”.

“A preferred length” for softwood is one of a series of industry accepted lengths beginning at 1.8 m and increasing by increments of 0.3 m up to 6.0 m.

If a log is to be supplied at other than a “preferred length” the actual length shall be rounded down to the nearest tenth of a metre.

Examples:

Actual length	Entry on Log Delivery Note
	To nearest tenth metre	To preferred length
3.80 m	3.8 m	3.6 m
4.11 m	4.1 m	3.9 m
4.75 m	4.7 m	4.5 m
4.99 m	4.9 m	4.8 m

2. Diameter measurement

The diameter of logs shall be measured with a diameter rule prepared and supplied by the Department. The diameter rule is calibrated in diameter classes of 50 mm. The diameter shall be measured underbark at the crown (small) end and rounded down to the nearest 50 mm class. When the cross section at the crown end is not circular, the average of the measurement along the greatest axis and the axis at right angles shall be recorded. The measurement shall be recorded on the log delivery note in millimetres rounded down to the nearest multiple of 50 mm.

Examples:

Actual Diameter (mm)	Entry on the Log Delivery Note (50 mm log class) (mm)
440	400
465	450
331	300
499	450

3. Volume, calculation of

The volume of the log timber (in cubic metres) is calculated by the Department by use of log volume tables, using the length and diameter measurements entered on the log delivery note under clauses 1 and 2.

Part C — Determination of quantity of log timber by weighing

For the purpose of determining the quantity of log timber by weighing the following provisions shall be complied with —

1. Equipment required

Weighing of log timber shall only be carried out on a weighbridge or other weighing equipment that has been approved for that purpose by the CEO.

[Clause 1 amended ~~in~~: Gazette 3 Sep 2010 p. 4276-7.]

2. Printer requirements for weighbridges

A weighbridge shall only be used for weighing log timber if the weighbridge is fitted with a printer that is capable of printing on the log delivery note, or on a weighbridge ticket that can be attached to the log delivery note, the following information —

- (a) the time and date of weighing; and
- (b) the place of weighing i.e. details of the weighbridge used; and
- (c) the weight of the log timber to the nearest 0.1 tonne; and
- (d) whether the weight is the gross weight or the tare weight.

3. Weighing procedure at weighbridge at sawmill

Where weighing of log timber is to be carried out on a weighbridge at the sawmill where the timber is to be processed —

- (a) the gross weight of the load shall be determined immediately before the log timber is unloaded;
- (b) the tare weight of the vehicle shall be determined immediately after the log timber is unloaded;
- (c) the net weight of the log timber shall be ascertained by deducting the tare weight from the gross weight of the load;
- (d) the gross, net and tare weights shall be printed on the log delivery note or, in the case of a weighbridge ticket, attached to the log delivery note immediately after each weighing however if the weighbridge is fitted with a memory, the officer in charge of the district in which the sawmill is located of the breakdown.

[Clause 5.1 amended ~~in~~; Gazette 3 Sep 2010 p. 4276-7.]

- 5.2 In the event of a breakdown referred to in clause 5.1, the CEO may authorise —
- (a) use of alternative weighing equipment; or
 - (b) the determination of the net weight of a load based upon the average net weight of loads for the relevant vehicle over the previous period of 2 months; or
 - (c) determination of the volume of the log timber by bin measure under Part D; or
 - (d) determination of the volume of the log timber by individual measurement under Part A or B.

[Clause 5.2 amended ~~in~~; Gazette 3 Sep 2010 p. 4276-7.]

- 5.3 In the event of a breakdown, the quantity of log timber shall be determined by use of the alternative method approved under clause 5.2 until the weighing equipment is repaired.

6. Procedure where vehicle and trailer cannot be weighed together

Where a vehicle and a trailer carrying log timber cannot be weighed together on a weighbridge, then the vehicle and the trailer —

- (a) shall be weighed separately; and
- (b) shall be the subject of separate log delivery notes.

Part D — Determination of volume of log timber by bin measure

For the purpose of determining the volume of log timber by bin measurement the following provisions shall be complied with —

1. Length of timber

All log timber in a bin shall be trimmed to the same length. The length of the logs shall then be measured and the length measurement entered on the log delivery note.

2. Height of load

Log timber in a bin shall be trimmed so that the top of the load is as level as possible.

The height of the load shall be measured from the top of the bolsters on the bed of the vehicle to the top of the load using an official measuring stick issued by the Department that is graduated in increments of 100 mm.

The height of the load shall be measured at 2 of the stanchions and at the centre of the log length. The 3 height measurements shall then be averaged and the average height measurement shall be entered in the log delivery note.

3. Width of load

The width of a load shall be measured between the stanchions on each side of the bin and shall be the minimum width between those stanchions. The width of the load shall then be entered in the log delivery note.

4. Stacking of timber

Logs in a bin must be stacked uniformly and so that no logs are crossed.

5. Miscellaneous

The stanchions in a bin shall be vertical. All measurements must be made while the load binder chains are secured.

All measurements shall be made by a representative of the buyer and the driver of the vehicle.

6. Volume, calculation of

The Department will calculate the volume of the bin using the length, height and width measurements entered on the log delivery note under clauses 1, 2 and 3.

The volume of log timber in a load is calculated by the Department by use of tables of conversion factors which take into account air space volume and log bark volume in the bin.

Part E — Determination of volume of log timber by infra red log scanner

For the purpose of determining the volume of log timber by infra red log scanner the following provisions shall be complied with —

1. Terms used

In this Part — log scanner means a computerized instrument designed —

- (a) to measure the diameter and length of a log when a log is passed through a scanning frame which emits and receives infra red light; and
- (b) to produce signals which correspond to measurements made during scanning with infra red light which can be interpreted and processed by a scanner computer; scanner computer means a computer operating a computer program and connected to a log scanner for the purpose of —

- (a) receiving measurement signals from the scanner;
- (b) interpreting and processing —
 - (i) measurement signals received from the scanner; and
 - (ii) information received through an input device for documents, a keyboard, or a bar code reader, and producing reports based on that information.

2. Equipment to be approved by CEO

A log scanner, scanner computer or computer program shall not be used to determine the volume of log timber unless the log scanner, scanner computer or computer program has been approved by the CEO.

[Clause 2 amended ~~in~~ Gazette 3 Sep 2010 p. 4276-7.]

3. Verification before each shift

A log scanner and scanner computer shall not be used to determine the volume of log timber unless, immediately before the commencement of each shift, a measurement verification test has been carried out on the log scanner and scanner computer in accordance with clause 5 and the scanner complies with the verification tolerance limits set out in clause 7 for the measurement of log diameter and length.

4. Verification after interruption

A log scanner and scanner computer shall not be used to determine the volume of log timber after the log scanner operation or scanner computer operation has been interrupted by —

- (a) maintenance or adjustment of the log scanner; or
- (b) a malfunction of the scanner computer; or
- (c) a power failure,

unless, immediately before recommencing, a measurement verification test has been carried out on the scanner and computer in accordance with clause 5 and the scanner and computer comply with the verification tolerance limits set out in clause 7 for the measurement of log diameter and length.

5. Measurement verification test

A measurement verification test to test the accuracy of the measurements made by a log scanner and scanner computer shall be carried out in the following manner —

- (a) by passing a test object or test objects that have been approved under clause 6 through the scanning frame of the log scanner at least 5 times so that a minimum of 5 diameter and 5 length measurements are made; and
- (b) by obtaining each measurement of the approved test object or objects from the scanner computer; and
- (c) by verifying the measurements obtained from the scanner computer against the measurement of the test object determined by the forest officer under clause 6.

6. Test object to be approved

10. Intake deck, requirements for log timber on

All loads of log timber placed on the intake deck of a log scanner shall —

- (a) be marked with the relevant log delivery note number; and
- (b) be separated from other loads of log timber by a clear gap on the intake deck.

11. Large or defective logs, procedure for

Where a load of log timber has been delivered to a sawmill for determination of the quantity of that timber by log scanner and the load contains logs that are too large or have too many defects to be processed in their delivered form through a debarking machine or the frame of a log scanner, the logs shall —
