1. IF and so often as it shall happen at any time or times hereafter, in any of the cases intended and provided for by the said Act 9th and 10th Victoria, Chapter 93, that there shall be no executor or administrator of the deceased, or that, there being such executor or administrator, no such action as in the said Act mentioned shall, within six calendar months after the death of such deceased person as therein mentioned, have been brought by and in the name of his or her executor or administrator, then and in every such case such action may be brought by and in the name or names of all or any of the persons (if more than one) for whose benefit such action would have been if it had been brought by and in the name of such executor or administrator; and every action so to be brought shall be for the benefit of the same person or persons, and shall be subject to the same regulations and procedure as nearly as may be as if it were brought by and in the name of such executor or administrator.

Ibid., sec. 2.

2. AND whereas, by the second section of the said Act, it is provided that the jury may give such damages as they may think proportioned to the injury resulting from such death to the parties respectively for whom and whose benefit such action shall be brought, and the amount so recovered, after deducting the costs not recovered from the defendant, shall be divided between the before-mentioned parties in such shares as the jury shall by their verdict direct: Be it enacted and declared that it shall be sufficient, if the defendant is advised to pay money into Court, that he pay it as a compensation in one sum to all persons entitled under the said Act for his wrongful act, neglect, or default, without specifying the shares into which it is to be divided by the jury: And if the said sum be not accepted, and an issue is taken by the plaintiff as to its sufficiency, and the jury shall think the same sufficient, the defendant shall be entitled to the verdict upon that issue.

This and recited Act to be read as one.

3. THIS and the said Act 9th and 10th Victoria, Chapter 93, shall be read together as one Act.

In the name and on behalf of the Queen I hereby assent to this Act.
