Aboriginal Communities Act 1979

Kundat Djaru Community By-laws 2005

1. Introduction

- (1) These by-laws are the Kundat Djaru Community By-laws 2005.
- (2) These by-laws have been made by the Governing Committee of the Kundat Djaru Aboriginal Corporation and approved by the Governor.
- (3) The Kundat Djaru Aboriginal Corporation is an Aboriginal community to which the Aboriginal Communities Act 1979 applies.
- (4) As that Act says, these by-laws apply to you if you are on the community lands of that Aboriginal community and it does not matter if you are a member of the community or not.
- (5) Under that Act the Governor has said which lands are the community lands of the community.
- (6) You are a member of the community if you are a member of the Corporation under its constitution.
- (7) These by-laws are in addition to the laws of Western Australia.

2. How the Governing Committee makes decisions

- (1) When it is making a decision under these by-laws the Governing Committee will consider the welfare of the community as the most important consideration.
- (2) The Governing Committee does not have to give reasons for any of its decisions under these by-laws.
- (3) The Governing Committee can tell you about a decision it has made under these by-laws by speaking or writing to you or by putting up a notice of it in a public place on the community lands.

3. Giving and refusing permission

- (1) The Governing Committee can permit a member of the Governing Committee or any other person to make decisions on its behalf about giving, refusing or taking away permission under these by-laws and if it does it must do so in writing.
- (2) If you want the Governing Committee's permission under these by-laws to do something, you must ask the Governing Committee, or a person who the Governing Committee has permitted to make decisions about giving or refusing permission on its behalf.
- (3) If these by-laws allow the Governing Committee to give permission to do something, it can give permission to any person or to any class of persons and also can at any time —
 - require the person or class of persons to comply with conditions when doing the thing; or
 - change or take away any such conditions; or
 - take away the permission.
- (4) If these by-laws allow the Governing Committee to give permission to do something, it can refuse to give permission.
